THERE are weak and ugly spots among the sixteen hundred millions of immortal souls that inhabit this earth. How low the average is, is hard to say.

Near Canton, in China, the well-known bandit, Chief Leong She, invited other bandit leaders to a dinner for the discussion of important business.

To show that he was a business bandit, Chief Leong She had the table decorated with the heads of kidnaped captives whose families had refused to pay ransom.

It isn't so much cutting off the head that impresses you as the fact that a Chinese, in power after five thousand years of Chinese civilization, should, with his friends, really enjoy his dinner with those sightless eyes staring at him.

THE "Fatal Car of Sarajevo," in which Archduke Francis of Austria and his wife were murdered, thus starting the war, has been offered for sale for the twenty-fifth time. Nobody will buy it. Four owners have been killed in the car since the original international killing. Several others have been killed by the car.

It is now called the "property of the devil." The chauffeurs say it has "an evil eye." However, they don't say which eye.

THE Smithsonian Institution will have a weather station in Southwest Africa. There, high up in the air, in the dry, clear atmosphere, science will study the sun, calculate solar radiation, and, if hopes are realized, predict weather as much as a week or a month, and even one year, in advance.

It has taken men a long while to find out that what they have and what happens to them depends largely on the big star that lights their short lives.

GERMANY'S "Lufthansa," the name of the great air traffic company which is practically a monopoly, plans a regular airplane service from Berlin to Peking, each plane to carry 20 passengers.

Europeans really PRODUCE and USE flying machines. But they cannot beat this country when it comes to talking about flying machines.

IN Canada the Canadian government will run a peat bog for one year to show that peat can be used economically. Perhaps someone in the Dakotas will find a way to use the "lignite" coal, which is far better than peat, stored away in the Dakotas and elsewhere, hundreds of millions of tons of it. "Time is of the essence," as lawyers say. A Frenchman is going to harness the hot water of the Tropical ocean.

Americans are already harnessing, and the British are planning to harness, the power of the tides. Soon somebody will harness the sun, and then the power problem will be settled for the next hundred million years, anyhow.

GREAT BRITAIN intends to protect ignorant investors against get-rich-quick stock salesmen and other schemers. Peddling stocks from door to door is to be stopped, selling stocks through the mail restricted and watched. The oil, real estate and mining schemes that rob investors in this country would not be possible in Great Britain.

A STOCK BROKER whose wife wanted $36,000 a year alimony while waiting for a divorce, complained that the lady bought 28 pairs of shoes in three days, averaging more than $15 a pair. He made over $50,000 in stocks one year and $500,000 the next. His wife, aged 42, paid $250 for a handbag. All this shows that we are living in prosperous times.

A PROMINENT citizen of New York wants the citizens and the city combined to wipe out the slums by tearing down dark, cold, sunless tenements. He would raise a fund of $500,000,000, half to be contributed by 500 rich men and half by the city. The idea is good and the fact that an old man with millions and every possible comfort for himself should concentrate on bettering conditions for the poor is encouraging, although the city will not spend the money as suggested.

THE way to wipe out slums is to compete with them and give better dwellings for rents lower than those in the filthy tenements.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company set the example, and Mr. Stadler, financial manager of that company, has shown that it is possible to provide comfortable rooms for $9 a month each while making your money earn 8 per cent interest. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is also building houses admirably planned, with all conveniences on a magnificent scale, for low rents. If that idea spreads the slums will disappear as the old-fashioned cabs disappeared when the taxis came in.

SHOT IN HOLDUP OF HIS STORE

The sensation of unwillingly holding the action end of a revolver barrel in his mouth when the trigger was pulled, was experienced by Sam Toreo, 24, store proprietor, of 16½ Logan street, this afternoon during a terrific hand-to-hand struggle with an alleged holdup man in his store. Toreo was able to recount his experiences because the revolver misfired while it was being held in his mouth, although he was wounded in the right thumb by a shot fired during the struggle.

Daniel Ladd, 27, Negro of 2622 Mahon street, who is alleged to have entered the place with a drawn revolver and ordered Toreo to raise his hands was captured in Logan street by a crowd attracted by the shooting, and was turned over to police.

Robert Centers, 22, Negro, of 1312 Bedford avenue, who accompanied Ladd as he entered the store, also was arrested.

According to Toreo, he grappled with Ladd as the latter raised the revolver. During the tussle on the floor of the store after the two went down, one shot was fired, the bullet passing through the store proprietor's thumb.

An instant later the barrel of the revolver was thrust against Toreo's face and broke off two teeth as it was jammed into his mouth. Before Toreo could free himself the trigger was pulled, but the revolver misfired.

Foster Is Picked as 80th Head

Judge D. Paulson Foster, of the Allegheny County Court, appeared certain to be the next president of the Eightieth Division Veterans' Association today when the nominating committee placed his name before the association reunion in Moose Temple.

It is expected that he will be the unanimous choice of the veterans when they vote tomorrow, though the by-laws provide that additional candidates can be placed in nomination from the floor.

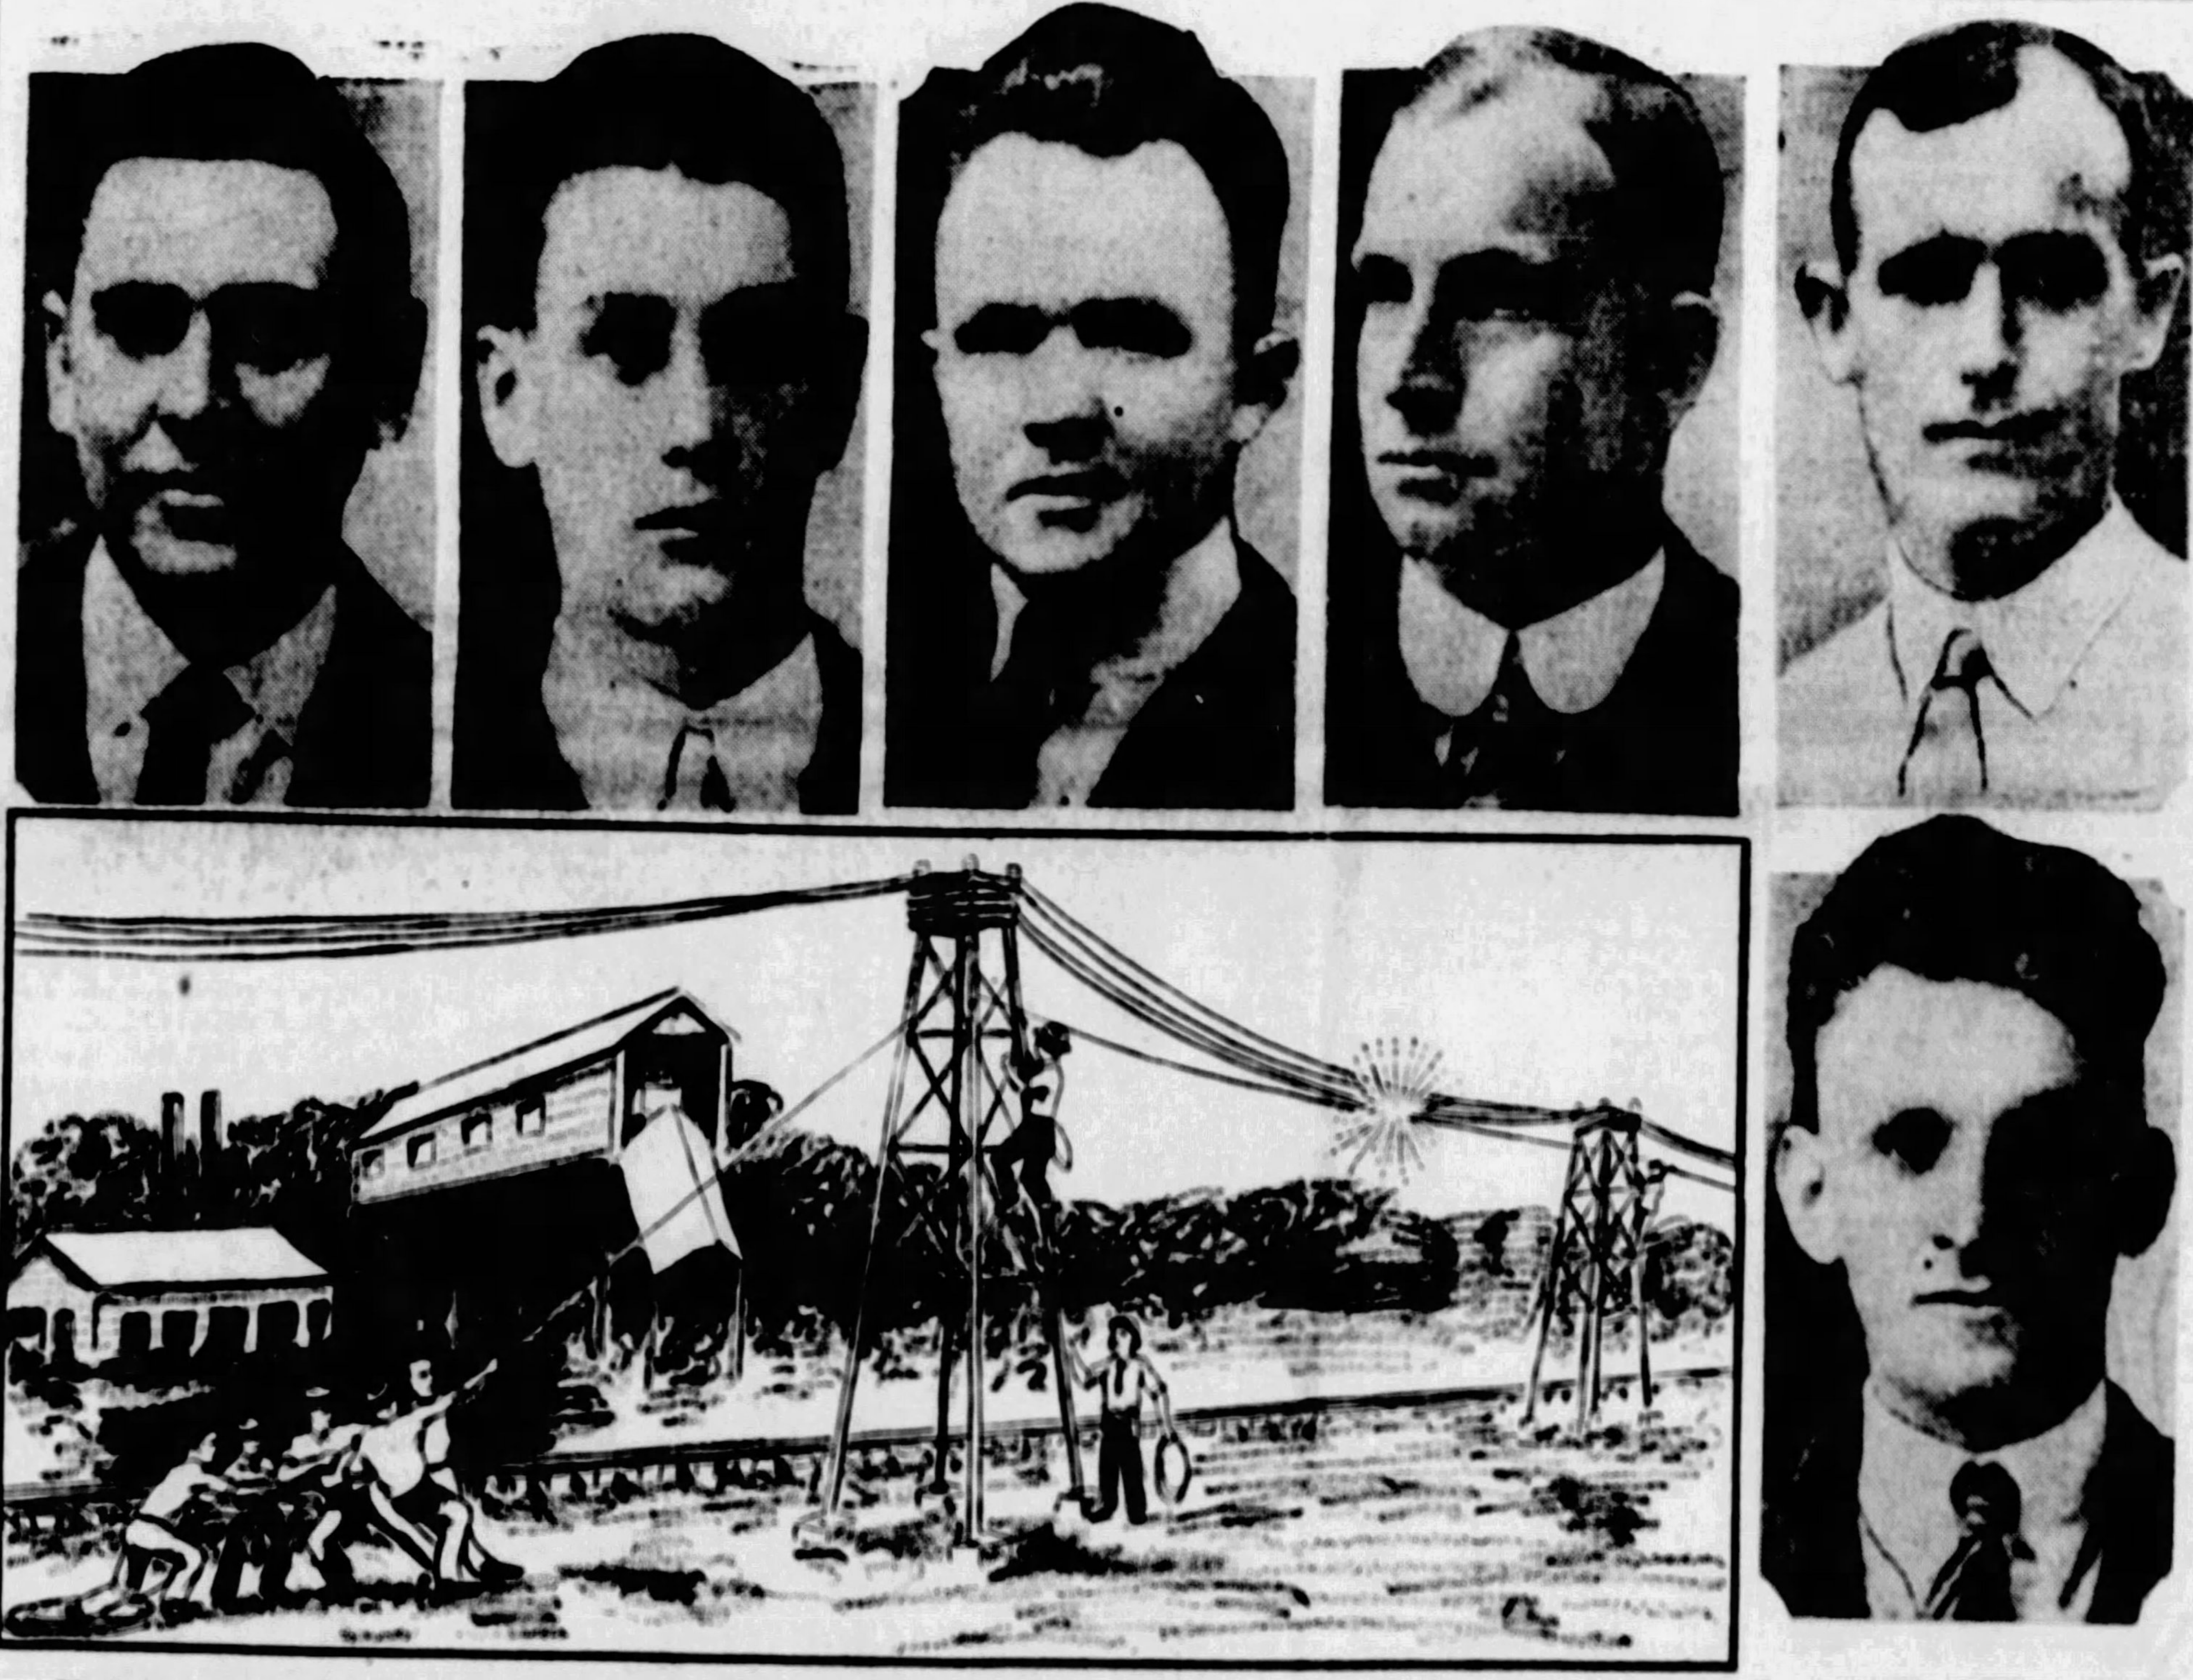
THE WEATHER.

Fair and somewhat warmer tonight and Saturday.



The jerk of a wire, which they had been stringing for telephone line near Dubois, Pa., brought instant death to these men yesterday. With the exception of Warren Barnett, the men were dragging the wire clear of a clump of bushes. As they jerked it, the wire snapped upward, clear of the bushes, and came in contact with a high voltage line above. The five died instantly in the moment of contact. Barnett, at the wire reel, a half-mile away, suffered the same shock the five received—33,000 volts. At the lower right the artist visualizes the scene just before the tragedy occurred. Top (left to right): Raymond Curry, Warren W. Barnett, Lloyd S. Shaffer, Raymond Smith and David W. Dunmire. Lower left: Blair C. Joyner.

JAWORSKI SOUGHT IN HOLDUP

Three holdup men, two of them masked, swept into the heart of Erie today, at the point of pistols, grabbed a $15,000 payroll and sped away in a dark sedan, leaving a trail of consternation, fear and conflicting reports.

Police at once began checking the slim description that witnesses were able to give with descriptions of Paul Jaworski, Allegheny county jail breaker, and his gang.

It was the first holdup involving a large sum in this district since Jaworski was jailed, after the Heading and Mollenauer robberies in which guards were slain and the mine payroll holdup, in which an armored car was blown up and which was followed by Jaworski's capture.

FIRED AT GAS STATION

The police recalled that on the day after Jaworski's escape here, a maroon sedan speeded through an Erie suburb and, as the car passed a gas station's uniformed attendant,

RABBIT MARANVILLE

MARANVILLE AT SHORT AGAINST PIRATES

The Pirates are leading the National League today, but their advantage of one percentage point is so small that the situation can be altered in many ways this afternoon, with a corresponding change in the standings. Here are a few of the possibilities:

IF the Pirates beat the Cardinals and the Cubs lose to the Reds, the standing will be—

	W.	L.	Pct.
Pittsburgh	73	50	.593
Chicago	73	52	.584

the Pirates lose to the Cardinals and the Cubs defeat the Reds, the standing will be—

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	74	51	.592
Pittsburgh	72	51	.585

the Pirates and Cubs both win or lose the standing will be unchanged in that the Pirates will still lead by one percentage point.

The Giants do not play today and the Cardinals, being one and one-half games behind, cannot better their third-place position even should they win while both the Pirates and Cubs lose.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

When the Pirates take the field against the St. Louis Cardinals at Forbes Field this afternoon to defend their slender lead of one point, they will be opposed by a former member of their own club in the person of Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, who has been grabbed by the Cards to plug the gap left at shortstop by the injury to Tommy Thevenow. He will relieve Heinie Schuble, 19-year-old Three-Eye League player, who has been filling the position since Thevenow broke an ankle.

HOPE TO RESCUE WOMAN FADES

By International News Service.

CARIBOU, Me., Sept. 2.—Capt. Terry Tully and Lieut. James Metcalf, in their London, Ontario, to London, England, monoplane, Sir John Carling, will search the sea en route to England for the missing plane St. Raphael, carrying Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Lieut. Col. F. F. Minchin, the Canadian fliers said today.

"We are going to do everything in our power while crossing the Atlantic to look for the missing St. Raphael," said Capt. Tully to International News Service.

By International News Service.

OTTAWA, Can., Sept. 2.—Grave fears for the safety of Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Lieut. Col. F. F. Minchin were felt here early today as the night passed without any word of the Fokker monoplane, St. Raphael, in which the three fliers were attempting a nonstop flight from England to America.

Nothing has been heard of the plane since it passed over the coast of Ireland at noon on Wednesday, heading out toward the Atlantic in what was hoped would be the first successful attempt to fly from Europe to America.

All efforts to pick up any traces of the plane have been fruitless. Hopes are still held that the aviators may have succeeded in crossing the ocean, and that their rations may be sufficient to keep them alive until rescued, if they have landed in some spot out of touch with civilization.

ST. JOHNS, Quebec, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—"We are going to hop off as soon as we fix our tail skid," Phil Wood, co-pilot of the monoplane Royal Windsor, said this morning. The Royal Windsor was forced down here last night.

Mr. Wood said that it probably would be noon before he was in a position to take the air.

COURTNEY AT PLYMOUTH IN ENGLAND-U. S. HOP

PREPARES FOR OCEAN DASH

By International News Service.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 2.—Capt. Frank T. Courtney, arrived here from the Calshot Navy airport in his Dornier-Napier hydroplane at 5 o'clock this evening on the first leg of his proposed England to America flight.

Courtney landed in Plymouth Sound and was towed to shore by a Royal Air Force hydroplane. The work of taking additional fuel and oil on board was begun as soon as the plane was moored. Courtney intends to hop off for his ocean dash via the Azores as soon as the plane is refueled.

Courtney had planned to go first to the Azores, but changed his itinerary two days ago, making Plymouth the first stop.

AUTO EXPLODES AFTER OHIO CRASH: 2 KILLED

TIFFIN, O., Sept. 2.—(INS)—Roman Bundshue, 23, Fremont, and Ralph Wilt, 28, Portland, Ind., were killed on the Fremont-Fostoria road near here early today when the machine Bundshue was driving exploded after leaving the road and striking a telegraph pole. Bundshue was caught in the wreckage and his body consumed by the flames, while Wilt was thrown clear of the wreckage after his clothing had been covered with burning gasoline.

MISS MARIE O'BRINE

MRS. MOLLIE RUPP

"She's jazz mad," the father of Miss Marie O'Brine, 20, 16 Olney avenue, told Missing Persons Bureau when he sought aid in finding the girl. "She'd rather dance than eat; I have no objection to dancing, but I couldn't stand it every night." The girl has not been heard from since she started for another dance. Mrs. Mollie Rupp, 32, 334 Penn avenue, local swimmer, is hunted by her husband, James Rupp, who says his mother-in-law knows but won't tell where she is.

POISON LIQUOR KILLS MAN

A victim of poison liquor, Joseph Zabbski, 24, of 2941 Mulberry way, died early today in West Penn Hospital. He was picked up by police at Penn avenue and Thirtieth street last night. At the morgue, where the body was identified, a brother said the dead man had not been at home for several weeks.

also appeared to have no opposition for recording secretary, while R. E. Daume, Samuel Evans and William Berghammer, all of Pittsburgh, were assured seats in the executive council.

BUGLER NOMINATED

William Graham, Jr., of Philadelphia, was nominated for first vice president, with Howard J. Wells, "the blind bugler of Petersburg, Va.," second vice president, and Boyd B. Stutler, of Charleston, W. Va., third.

Other officers slated to go into office without opposition are Father Edward A. Wallace, New York, chaplain; Russell L. Stultz, New Market, Va., historian; Charles E. Pollard, Petersburg, Va., judge advocate, and Oliver K. Fry, Pittsburgh, and R. J. Fallon, Wheeling, color sergeants.

Additional members of the executive council will be R. T. Bonsall, Philadelphia; George W. Brittingham, Norfolk, Va.; Capt. Thomas W. Hooper, "the fighting parson," Culpeper, Va.; C. P. Bushman, Wheeling; A. M. Brownley, Norfolk; Howard W. Brock, Indiana; Sol Burka, Clarksburg; F. R. Saternow, Altoona.

The veterans settled down to the business of their tenth annual reunion today after two days of entertainment provided by Pittsburgh members, climaxed last night with an informal banquet, in the Fort Pitt Hotel, that had all the earmarks of mess-time in the Army.

Another long line of visitors was passing through the registration department at Moose Temple throughout the day. Visiting ladies were gathering at Webster Hall where local Gold Star mothers and members of the Pittsburgh auxiliaries held a reception luncheon in their honor.

Nomination of officers for next year and the selection of the 1928 reunion city were the principal events on today's program. Hundreds of the delegates went out to greet Joe Harris and John Miljus, members of the Pirates baseball team and former members of the Eightieth, at the Pittsburgh-St. Louis game at Forbes Field in the afternoon.

VISIT HOSPITAL

Strong men strove ineffectually to hold back tears and speak without visible emotion yesterday when Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett, war-time leader of the Eightieth, Capt. Carlo D. Cella, president of the veterans' association, and Lieut. Frank S. Schoble, Jr., of Philadelphia, blinded at Nantillois, greeted their former comrades in the U. S. Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall.

Brett, the leader, noted for treating his officers "almost as well as his men," was the idolized, as his "boys" always demonstrate to him. Cella, the comrade, sympathized with less fortunate fellows, but it was Schoble, the tragic victim of shell-fire in the Meuse-Argonne sector, who held aloft the torch of inspiration when he said:

"When I think of the old Eightieth, of the friendships and associations formed, I can honestly say it was worth the price."

Hardly yet past 30 years, the son of a Philadelphia multi-millionaire, this slim, energetic hero was given a rousing, spontaneous burst of applause by the tubercular veterans in the hospital.

REMEMBERS BRET

Besides the speakers, William L. Fleming, general chairman of the reunion committee, who lost a brother in France and has another who is a member of the Eightieth, took part in the hospital visit.

They were met at the hospital by Dr. Henry R. Brown, superintendent, who told of first meeting "Lieut. L. M. Brett" in 1885, when the young cavalry officer was chasing through Arizona and New Mexico after Geronimo, the Apache chieftain.

Others in the party which visited the hospital were Miss Gertrude Horne, secretary of Pennsylvania Auxiliary No. 1; Mrs. A. K. Kohnfelder, Walter G. Fleming, Judge D. Paulson Foster, president of the Pennsylvania branch of the association; Christ Kramer, Cyril A. Madden, Col. S. A. Hagerling, Eugene O'N. Herron, E. C. Harry and Robert E. Daum.

MOTHER ASPHYXIATED, 2 CHILDREN OVERCOME

TWO SHOT IN STORE HOLDUP

Shot by the same revolver, an alleged holdup man and his intended victim were taken to the West Penn Hospital early this morning following a dramatic struggle for posession of the weapon in a Cedarville street confectionery store.

The shooting occurred in the store of Guy Chianese, 65, of 358 Cedarville street. Chianese and Ralph Donatelli, 39, of 437 Cedarville street, were shot with the store proprietor's revolver, police say, when Donatelli, a former employe, entered the place and demanded money.

PROPRIETOR WOUNDED

Instead of complying with the demand, Chianese took a revolver from a cash drawer and fired. The bullet passed through Donatelli's right wrist. Donatelli rushed forward and the men clinched. In the scuffle which followed a second shot, which inflicted a scalp wound in the store proprietor's head, was fired.

Persons attracted by the shooting summoned police, who say Donatelli, with the revolver in his hand, was standing over Chianese when they arrived.

Suspicious person charges were entered against both men at No. 5 Police Station.

Death of 6 By Wire Probed

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Sept. 2.—A jerk of a telephone wire to clear it of underbrush, bringing it in contact with a high tension wire overhead for a fraction of a second, was responsible for the deaths of six linemen near Timblin yesterday, an investigation by Coroner Ira Bowser, of Jefferson county, revealed.

"Death from electrocution" was the terse verdict of the coroner's jury.

The victims were members of a crew stringing a telephone wire from Timblin to Goodville. About a mile east of Timblin, near a mine tipple, the telephone line became fast in bushes, the inquest disclosed. Five men on a signal from the leader pulled the wire. It snapped clear of the brush, shot upward and touched a line of the Penn Public Service Corporation, carrying 22,000 volts, then dropped.

In the instant of contact death came to the five men and to a sixth operating the wire reel a quarter of a mile away. He was Foreman Warren Barnett. The others were David Dunmire, Lloyd Shaffer, Blair Joyner, Raymond Smith and Raymond Curry, all married, of Punxsutawney.

Quay Grube and a fellow worker named McMillan, carrying insulators, rushed to the aid of the shocked men, prone on the ground. They tested the telephone wire, found it dead, then tried to resuscitate the victims, but without avail.

Smith, Joyner and Dunmire each was the father of three children. Shaffer was the father of two, and Curry had one. Barnett, line foreman, had none.

Separate funerals will be held for the victims over the week end. Some of the funerals will be held tomorrow, with others on Monday.

FAYETTE BANK RECEIVER SUES TO REGAIN $14,413

Two suits in assumpsit to recover $14,413 for the benefit of the depositors of the closed Fayette City National Bank, were filed in Common Pleas Court by the receiver, J. Howard Kelly, against John S. Patterson and the Mellon National Bank, garnishees.

It is alleged in the petition that George H. Patterson, without authority or instructions, signed the name of John S. Patterson by George H. Patterson to a check for $11,334, which was cashed and the money deposited in the Mellon National Bank, the money having been withdrawn before the Fayette City bank closed June 3.

Tragedies Balancing 1927 Air Glories

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, September 2.—Tragedy is being written into the inspiring 1927 record of aviation—a record brilliantly illuminated by the achievements of Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and other flying immortals.

Fifteen fliers, including two women, have vanished in spectacular and perilous transoceanic flights in the last four months, a check-up revealed today. And yet in the face of this sad sacrifice to the progress of aviation, other intrepid airmen are at this very moment writing new and everlasting pages into the record.

Remarkably enough, the two women who have vanished represent two generations—Miss Mildred Doran, the pretty young Michigan school teacher, and the impulsive 62-year-old Princess Anne Lowenstein-Wertheim of England.

The sap chapters of the flying season are told in the following drab, albeit ominous, statistical record of the "failures" since early in May:

MAY 5—Two disappeared. On this date Capt. Saint-Roman and Commander Mouneyres left St. Louis, Senegal, for Pernambuco on a flight from France to Buenos Aires.

MAY 8—Two more vanished, both famous French fliers. Capt. Charles Nungesser and Capt. Francois Coli left Paris for New York and were never seen again.

AUGUST 16—The saddest day recorded in the aviation record. Five disappeared over the Pacific Ocean. Miss Mildred Doran, John Auggie Pedlar and Lieut. V. R. Knope left Oakland, Cal., in the plane Miss Doran for Hawaii and vanished into the ocean mists. On the same day Jack Frost, of New York, and Gordon Scott, of Santa Monica, left Oakland for Hawaii and were never seen again.

AUGUST 19—Two more. William P. Erwin, of Chicago, and Alvin H. Eichwaldt left Oakland in search of the Missing Oakland-to-Hawaii fliers and they, too, vanished.

AUGUST 25 — Paul Redfern, young Rochester, N. Y., aviator, left Brunswick, Ga., for Brazil, and today—eight days later—no trace of him has been found.

AUGUST 31—Three more. On this date Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. F. F. Minchen hopped off from Upavon, England, and are now long overdue at Ottawa, Canada, their destination.

The possibility of disaster having closed in on Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and her companions has served to accentuate the perils of transoceanic voyages over uncharted courses and has given impetus in some quarters to a movement to check promiscuous hopoffs from flying fields all over the globe.

OHIO PRISON GUARD KILLED BY CONVICT

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Sept. 2.—(A. P.)—Grant Weakley, prison guard at the state brick plant at Junction City, near here, was shot and killed by one of two convicts who made a break for liberty in the office of a dentist here today, where they had been taken for treatment. The prisoners were captured about a mile outside of New Lexington by a posse of deputy sheriffs and citizens.

$15,000 STOLEN IN ERIE

shots were fired at him. It was thouught then that the car was Jaworski's and that its occupants had mistaken the gas station attendant for a policeman.

Since then there has been virtually nothing to show where Jaworski may be hiding.

Chief George Murren, of the Allegheny county detectives, said he would investigate at once to determine whether the robbers were Jaworski and his gang.

The description of the robbers broadcast by Erie police was incomplete. It put the ages of two of the men at between 25 and 30. Jaworski is 28 or 30. John Vassbinder, who escaped with him, is slightly younger. No one was able to describe the third man in the Erie holdup. The man who gave Jaworski and Vassbinder pistols and who aided their escape from the jail was older than the other two, and taller. Both he and Jaworski are obviously foreigners. Vassbinder, who is slim, sallow and boyish, is an American type. His hair is neither light nor dark. In a general way his description fits one of the Erie holdup men.

EYE WITNESSES DIFFER

Witnesses' stories of the holdup varied widely. The reckless and surefooted speed of the robbers indicated long experience, and so swift were their operations that the few who saw the holdup were unable to agree on details. They were in doubt as to whether the robbers were foreigners or native born. Their car was a Buick sedan, it was said, and bore an Illinois license plate. A maroon Chrysler sedan, not unlike a Buick in passing appearance, took Jaworski, John Vassbinder and their unidentified accomplice from the jail here.

Two of the robbers jumped from the car in front of the Erie County Electric Company's building, and menacing the messengers, A. Driggs and Ray Pinney, with pistols, snatched the satchel containing the payroll fund. A third robber remained at the wheel of the purring car.

Driggs and Pinney had just drawn the money from the Second National Bank. It was early morning, and although in a busy downtown section of the city few persons were yet stirring on the streets.

The holdup attracted little attention. No shots were fired, and the robbers dashed away before pedestrians had gathered their wits. Driggs and Pinney immediately shouted the alarm, but the robbers' car had turned a corner and was beyond pursuit before other cars could be commandeered for the chase.

Reports of the direction which the robbers' car had taken were conflicting. It may have been headed out of Erie toward Pittsburgh, according to the word received by Sergt. Bergen of the state police, who at once stationed men guarding all exits from Erie.

TYRONE BOY CYCLIST IS INJURED IN CRASH

TYRONE, Pa., Sept. 2.—Hurled from his bicycle when he ran into an automobile, Claude Benton, 14, suffered a fractured skull. The driver, W. E. Fisher, of Lock Haven, took the boy to the Altoona Hospital.

FACTIONS CLASH IN 19TH

Sharp verbal tilts interrupted a Republican organization mass meeting in the Snodgrass School last night. Candidates for city and county offices were forgotten while factional leaders heatedly debated the attitude of the city administration toward rival aspirants for constable.

The battle of words started when Samuel Reno, Jr., Republican chairman of the Nineteenth Ward, declared that the "city administration is for the Regular Republican ticket from the top down to our candidate for constable."

He indicated John P. Murphy, who is being supported by the Reno faction for that position. Immediately, adherents of James Clark, another aspirant, were on their feet. Among them, it is said, were a number of city employes.

Reno pounded in vain for order. Finally he ordered one of the objectors, John Carlin, a messenger in the employ of the city, from the hall. Carlin refused to leave. Cooler heads in the audience managed to quiet the tumult and the meeting proceeded, enabling some of the organization candidates to make their speeches.

World Hop Pair on to Bagdad

CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The American round-the-world plane, Pride of Detroit, hopped off here at 5:20 o'clock this morning for Aleppo and Bagdad. The airmen, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, hoped to reach Bagdad, about 1,075 miles from Constantinople, by 4:30 in the afternoon.

Brock and Schlee reached Constantinople from Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, shortly before noon Wednesday and immediately became involved in Turkish red tape, which would not permit them to take off on the next lap of their flight until authorization was given by the Turkish military authorities at Angora.

As patiently as they could, they waited all Wednesday afternoon and throughout Thursday for the permit to fly over Anatolia, but it did not reach them until late last night.

HIT HUGE COUNTERFEIT RING IN NORTH SIDE RAID

Veterans Making Merry

CAN'T DEPORT CARROLL AS ALIEN, SAYS BROTHER

SIXTH REUNION

Miss Ruth McClelland, Galesburg, Ill., Y. M. C. A. worker attached to the Three Hundred and Twentieth Infantry in France, has arrived for the Eightieth veterans' reunion, her sixth of the eight which have been held.

CHILDREN

Billy Deneau, Chicago; Charles Wentland, Jr., son of Patrolman Wentland, Forty-third Street Police Station, and June Blakely, 1300 Veto street, children of veterans attending the reunion.

Fades the light and afar
Goeth Day, cometh night;
And a star leadeth all,
Speedeth all to their rest.

"YUH GOTTA . . ."

". . . get up, yuh gotta get . . ." Norman P. Boggs, bugler from Post No. 2, Eightieth Division Veterans' Association, Philadelphia, remembers many of his old calls, but has purposely left his notes on that one at home.

"TOP-KICKS"

H. G. Myers, Mechanicsburg; W. E. Colligan, Carrick; J. H. Garrett, Blackstone, Va., and E. D. O'Brien, Pittsburgh, all former top-sergeants in the Eightieth Division in its wartime days. They're fairly "tame" now, the boys report.

WITH DADDY

Ruth Anna Haigh, daughter of H. S. Haigh, 1015 Swissvale avenue, Swissvale, with daddy at the convention.

"Now I'll Tell One" On the 80th

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"Boy, no foolin', that was positively the funniest thing that happened in the American Army. That time the—"

"Ah, applesauce. What about the time we retreated to the music of a fiddle?"

They're arguing now about who has the best one to tell down at the Eightieth stamping grounds. It's getting to be a regular race. But, that one about the aesthetic retreat to the strains of a violin is guaranteed to be at least one of the most unique things that took place Over There.

It was like this. Sergt. Matz of Co. K, 320th Inf., took his violin to Camp Lee. He became director of the orchestra and soothed their tired souls so much they coaxed him to take the fiddle to France with him.

One day Capt. W. L. Thompson ordered retreat—and—the buglers just couldn't find their bugles. It was all fixed that someone was to suggest that the music be supplied by Matz' fiddle. And the captain thought that would be a great idea!

Fiddles "The Colors"

So the gang faced the flag and saluted, trying to keep their faces straight while Sergt. Matz soulfully played "The Colors."

Lieut. Eugene Herron gets credit for that one.

And say, there is a reward out for anyone who knows who that "bird" at the convention is who swears he is Joe Spivas from Punkin Center, Ky., a war "Y" secretary and honorary member of the Army. There is an Injun in the blanket somewhere there! Page Sherlock Holmes.

It is suspected that W. C. Smith from Fries, Va., a mechanic of Company B, Three Hundred and Seventeenth Infantry, could solve the mystery if he would. He says that there were:

"Plenty guys from around my place who thought when they got to camp they were in France, they traveled so far."

Do any of you fellows remember the Memorial Day celebration going over, just before you landed in Brest Harbor, when the Heinies saluted with a few submarine souvenirs? Who was the fellow who piped up:

"Hey, set 'em up in another alley."

And the one who yelled:

"Mark forty-four."

H. A. McClaren of Summit, Va., from Company F, Three Hundred and Eighteenth, says he was sitting on a barrel getting his hair bobbed at the time it happened.

R. C. Mock from Jennette, Pa., is all upset. He can't find anyone he knows down at Mosse Temple. He was with Company B, Three Hundred and Fifth, and was only a poor buck private. As Mr. Mock threatens to go out and get into mischief if he doesn't find someone of the old gang soon—comrades please note. He likes Jeannette. Paris was a pretty lively place too, he says.

We heard a roaring "Hello Sam" and turned around just in time to see E. V. Smith, One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Field Artillery, of Farmington, Pa., grasp the hand of his old buddy Samuel Mosher of Company D, Three hundred and Nineteenth from Smithfield.

It would have done your heart good to see Mosher grab Smith's year old brown eyed baby out of his arms and kiss it. They talked about that time Smithie got gassed. Little Marna looked on gurgling and holding tightly to the hand of her daddie's old buddy.

The Nicest Kid

Who has the nicest kid is another problem that hasn't been threshed out quite thoroughly since the Eightieth got together.

This afternoon Donald S. Scroggins is going to get a big surprise out at the Veterans Hospital at Aspinwall. It was the idea of Lieut. Frank Schoble, the handsome and brilliant sightless soldier from Philadelphia.

He will be visited by a crowd of his buddies. Pathetically Lieut. Schoble smiled:

"I want to see Don! I've been anxious to get out there all this time. The last I saw him was the day I got hit."

So bravely is he carrying on that the blind lieutenant forgets that he will not see his buddy this afternoon. But he will be there to grasp his hand and laugh over the war, and that will help a lot. Lieut. Schoble tells you:

"Don is in a bad shape, I understand. Too bad he can't be up and around like the rest of us."

The cheering party will consist of E. A. Rhodes, Roanoke, Va.; D. S. Hunkison, R. O. Barkley, Uniontown; George E. Beal, Robert R. Paul and W. L. Darrow, of Pittsburgh; M. E. Burke, J. J. Gibson, of Central City, Pa.; Capt. R. M. Dashiell, Forest Hills, and N. C. Pattie, of Falls Church, Va.

Has anybody ever heard this one? If you have stop me.

"No parlez vous Francais."

"H——! Give him his change, you!"

ARREST MAN ON COUNTERFEIT CHARGE

Agents of the department of justice and city detectives struck today at what they described as a powerful counterfeiting ring, which operates in the tri-state territory, when they raided a house at 419 East Ohio street and seized inks and dyes and other paraphernalia used to "raise" money.

The raid followed the arrest yesterday in Warren, O., of Joseph Borsinski, 30, on a charge of passing counterfeit money. Borsinski gave the North Side address as his home.

Detectives said the counterfeiters had been passing $5 bills as $20 bills in the small towns of this district for more than six months. Their method of camouflage, police said, was to past "20" of the "5" and to discolor the written word.

The East Ohio street house was unoccupied when the raid took place, but detectives were hopeful that with the capture of Borsinski his accomplices would be gathered in.

EMIGRE SLAIN AT RUSS CONSULATE IN WARSAW

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The Russian legation here was the scene of a tragedy at noon today, when a Russian emigrant was shot dead after an altercation with a minor official. It is declared that the official used his revolver only when attacked by the emigrant with a knife. No political complications are expected, the Polish say, as the incident occurred on Soviet territory and involved only Russians.

Earl Carroll Cites His History Here

By UNIVERSAL SERVICE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Earl Carroll, imprisoned theatrical producer, was born in the United States and cannot be deported by the government as an alien, his brother, Norman Carroll, declared today.

Admitting his mother and father came here from Ireland, Carroll declared their marriage took place in Pittsburgh, and there would be no difficulty in establishing this. The elder Carroll was a naturalized citizen, and his three sons and a daughter were born in Pittsburgh.

There is no record of Earl Carroll's birth in the Bureau of Vital Statistics here. According to friends of the theatrical producer, he was born in Taggart street, old Allegheny, before its incorporation with Pittsburgh, and the records of the North Side at that time were kept poorly.

Jack Loder, publicity man at a local theater, a lifelong friend of Carroll, says he and the theatrical producer were born and raised in the same neighborhood. He says Carroll is about 36 years old.

John Harris Dies in Home

Dies

JOHN HARRIS, SR.

John Harris, Sr., 81, founder of the Harris Amusement Company and originator of many theatrical ventures in Pittsburgh, died at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, after a long illness, at his home in Harris Terrace, Crafton Heights. He was the father of the late Senator John P. Harris, Senator Frank J. Harris and Dennis A. Harris.

Mr. Harris, associated with his son in many business ventures, at one time was manager of the Grand Opera House in Fifth avenue and also was fiscal agent of the Harry Davis Enterprises here for several years. For many years Mr. Harris had been in control of the concessions for score cards and other privileges with the Pittsburgh Baseball Club.

BORN IN ENGLAND

He was born at Blackburn, England, November 12, 1846, and was educated in the schools of Preston, England. He came to the United States when a young man and became a teacher in the public schools at Coulter, Pa. After several years as a school teacher he started business as a cigar manufacturer. He later entered the amusement business as a member of the firm of Harris & Willoughby, the first concern to use a travesty on the prize ring as a means of entertainment in theatrical circles.

Mr. Harris lived four-score years, long enough to see the business for which he laid the foundation spread out past city and state limits. From the time he landed on American shores from his native England he seemed possessed of a flair for promotion.

He met with a fair measure of success at writing plays, but it was not a fraction of that satisfying quantity that greeted him when he moved on to the business end of the theater. With his eldest son, the late State Senator John P. Harris, he opened a museum in Fifth avenue near Wood street, and later there was the World's Museum in old Allegheny.

Things moved swiftly from that time. The Eden Musee, McKeesport's moving picture house of the time, came under the Harris banner. In Pittsburgh, the Avenue Theater and the Grand Opera House—scenes of scores of early triumphs—prospered with a Harris at the helm.

FOLLOWED LURE OF GOLD

Mr. Harris interrupted his Pittsburgh progress long enough to go west during the British-Columbia gold strike. But he returned satisfied that there are other things besides looking for hidden gold, and he landed a ten-strike of his own by garnering the concessions at the Pirates' home grounds.

For many years Mr. Harris resided in Tunnel street, and later on Cliff street. About 30 years ago he moved to Crafton and erected a home there on a street now known as Harris terrace.

Mr. Harris leaves two sons, State Senator Frank J. Harris and Dennis A. Harris; three daughters, Mrs. Anne Harris Durham, Miss Mary Harris and Miss Ella Harris. He also leaves nine grandchildren. Mr. Harris was a member of St. Philip's Catholic Church of Crafton.

ANOTHER ELOPEMENT :-: IN COHAN FAMILY :-: SURPRISES GOTHAM

GEORGETTE FIRST

Georgette Cohan, daughter of George M. Cohan, theatrical producer, with William H. Rowse, from whom she has been divorced in Mexico. Her first husband, with whom she eloped in 1921, was J. William Souther, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, who died in 1925. Georgette is Cohan's daughter by his first marriage.

FATHER

George M. Cohan, prominent New York theatrical producer, father of the two girls. The Cohans were at their summer home in New York state when Mary, who has known the orchestra leader with whom she eloped only a short time, gave to Broadway another choice bit of gossip. Cohan now has two unmarried, younger children by his second marriage.

ORCHESTRA LEADER

And now Mary, 18, oldest of Cohan's three children by his second wife, who was Agnes Nolan, Boston. Mary, graduated in the spring from Marymount School, Catholic institution at Tarrytown, eloped and married Neil Litt, 29, leader of a hotel orchestra, at Elkton, Md. They're going to Litt's Dayton, O., home, where he'll sell insurance for his father.

NO EPIDEMIC ALARM HERE

CITY PARALYSIS CASES STAY AT OLD RATIO

Fears that infantile paralysis might this year develop into an epidemic such as that which scourged the United States in 1916 were minimized today by the City Department of Public Health.

Western Pennsylvania in particular and this country in general should have no fear of infantile paralysis growing into a [illegible] plague in the opinion of Dr. H. E. Marks, head of the Bureau of Infectious diseases.

The ratio of cases is just about normal in comparison with other years, Dr. Marks said, with the exception of 1916, the year when the epidemic raged throughout the United States, the dreaded disease warping, maiming and paralyzing the bodies of little tots with death embracing many of them to put an end to their torture and agony.

But this year Dr. Marks stated, the disease is hardly more prevalent than in other years. Eastern Ohio and Northwestern West Virginia have attracted attention by the numerous cases reported there, but even in those two sections the sickness has displayed no likelihood of becoming a scourge, and Dr. Marks believes the cases are not virulent.

"In the majority of cases the victims recover entirely from the paralysis in a few months," Dr. Marks declared. "Of the cases reported this summer in Pittsburgh, numbering about 20, I can show most of the victims who have recovered, playing in the streets just as vigorously as other normal healthy children, the paralysis having disappeared. It was in 1916, the epidemic year, that most of the cases of permanent paralysis occurred."

THOUSANDS FLEECED HERE IN LOTTERY FRAUD

SUSPECT HELD IN $25,000 SWINDLE

Carnegie police today are checking up the details of a $25,000 swindle in which many persons of Carnegie and McKees Rocks purchased worthless lottery tickets. More than 100,000 tickets are believed to have been sold.

Harold Coe, 38, of 14 Norwood street, is under arrest in connection with the fraud. Police are seeking his brother, William Coe, said to have been a partner.

Prizes for the lottery were listed on the tickets as three automobiles and $500 in cash. The drawings were supposed to have been held Wednesday.

On the tickets it was stated that the drawings would be at 201 Walnut street, Carnegie. The swindle was revealed when, as a crowd assembled there Wednesday, Mrs. Grace Boyd, living there, said she knew nothing of the lottery, and police were notified.

Police say the Coe brothers had a squad of canvassers selling the tickets. The agents are said to have received a 25 percent commission.

The arrest was made on a warrant sworn to by a railroad detective and after Smith was arrested by North Side police, he was turned over to Lieut. H. E. Stover and returned to Johnstown.

According to Lieut. Stover, Smith, who used the aliases Thomas Sidelli and George Miller, victimized many foreigners employed near Johnstown. The railroad police have been seeking him since May 3.

EXPLOSION OF 75 "DUD," DROPPED, KILLS CHILD

By International News Service.

WACO, Tex., Sept. 2.—Dared by his 14-year-old brother, Truett, to drop Truett and a 10-year-old sister were in the room when Charles hurled the shell to the floor, but both escaped injury.

a French 75 "dud" shell, which they had found in a vacant house, to see if it would explode, 5-year-old Charles Rivers, son of the Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Rivers, threw it down on the floor of his home and was killed.

Correctly Styled Suits and Topcoats in New Weaves for College Men

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES

Richman's Clothes are going to college, this fall, in greater numbers than ever—for university men are fast learning that Richman designers are just what they want—that clothes more smartly styled are not to be had at any figure—that Richman's Clothes afford woolen luxury and tailoring quality seldom offered at substantially higher prices.

The Latest Richman University Sack

All $22.50

You may choose here without restriction — Richman's clothes are all one price—$22.50 for any suit, topcoat, or tuxedo suit with silk dress vest — two and three-button university sack models, three and four-button collegiate topcoats—rugged twist weaves in colorful mixtures, luxurious cassimeres, worsteds and cheviots, in the new shades of blue, gray and brown favored this season by university style leaders.

Extra Trousers—$3, $4, $6

An Entirely New Collegiate Topcoat

You would willingly pay $40 to $50 for Richman's Clothes if they were offered through ordinary retail stores under another label. But because they are made in our own factories, by stock-owning workers, and sold direct to you through our own stores, you get this amazing quality at $22.50. So it is not surprising that many college men buy two or three suits at a time before leaving for school—two good suits and a tuxedo, or topcoat, all for the price some men pay for a single suit.

SEEKS THRILL IN MAN'S GARB; ARRESTED

By International News Service.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 2.—Miss Nellie Dunn, 21-year-old West Collingswood spinster, ran afoul of the Jersey "blue laws" today as a result of dressing in men's clothing "for a thrill." She is lodged in the West Collingswood jail charged with violating a law recently enacted by the borough forbidding women from masquerading in male attire.

Miss Dunn was taken into custody by Traffic Policeman Bennett last night when she asked him the way to Gibbsboro. She told police that she planned to walk to Gibbsboro, five miles distant, to "get a job in the paint works," and had donned the male attire "for a thrill."

Police said she confessed to borrowing the clothing from the wardrobes of her 65-year-old father and a brother for whom she has kept house since the death of her mother six months ago.

OPEN WILD PONY ROUNDUPS OFF VA. COAST

NORFOLK, Va.—This is the season when roundups of "bank" and "beach" ponies are staged on Chincoteague and Assateague islands and on other keys off the Virginia coast which run down toward Cape Hatteras, N. C.

Trackless as the sands over which the ponies today trod is the past out of which they have come to serve man and also to baffle him as to their origin and size.

Some of the ponies off the Virginia coast have never seen the face of man and are very wild. The larger ponies measure about 13 hands high and because their principal habitat is Chincoteague Island, a strip of land about nine miles long by a mile and a half wide they are often referred to as Chincoteague ponies.

How did these horses get to America? Is there any blood connection between the wild horses of Virginia and those that roam the North Carolina keys? And how is their small stature to be explained?

The trail of the Chincoteague ponies runs back into the realm of legends. An oft-repeated tale has it that they were imported, via storms and shipwreck, by a Spanish nobleman some 400 years ago.

Before setting out for America the Spaniard collected, for purposes of breeding, a band of fine Moorish barbs and Arabian horses. The horses were taken aboard the same ship upon which their owner embarked from Cadiz. The vessel was driven off its course by storms and ultimately wrecked. The Spaniard was lost, but his splendid horses swam ashore and survived. These horses were the ancestors of the "beach" ponies of Virginia. So runs the legend.

There is another story—an Indian legend—which has been handed down from generation to generation. It tells of a ship that was pounded to pieces on one of the shallow beaches of Chincoteague Island. From this ship no man landed, but 15 magnificent horses swam ashore. They were very large, with slim legs and small ears and heads held high. Small ears are one of the distinctive features of the Chincoteague ponies. This Indian story corroborates the Spanish legend.

To solve the mystery of the wild horses, J. O. Williams, senior animal husbandman in the United States Department of Agriculture, was asked if he "took any stock" in the traditional ancestry of the Chincoteague ponies.

"Why not?" he said. "Though the story is not provable, it is far from impossible. There are signs in plenty that the present day wild ponies are the remnant of a very fine breed of horses. I have often thought that the early colonists brought them to America, but the real truth may be in the legend."

Mr. Williams was further asked if the "bank" ponies of North Carolina—some of them so small that no full-sized man could ride them without having his feet drag the ground—and the large "beach" ponies of Virginia had a common ancestry.

"Possibly," he said, "though we cannot be certain. As to size, take any horse, no matter how fine-blooded, and subject him to the geographical and climatic conditions under which the beach and bank ponies live, and see what happens."

The little North Carolina ponies are usually dark brown and have long, shaggy coats in the winter, with tousled mane and bunched fetlock and forelock. They are easily tamed, learn tricks quite readily and are playful and mischievous. The Chincoteague ponies are mostly black, though all colors may be found among them.

Once a year there is a round-up of the beach ponies on Chincoteague Island. Though the horses run wild, they are not public property. They belong to the owners of the lands over which they range. The colts are branded with the "marks" of their mothers, and the same brand can sometimes be counted on hundreds of the wild horses. A few stallions and many mares are left in the wilds, while the rest of the ponies are offered for sale at the round-up.

CANDY MAY AID EPILEPSY

CHICAGO—Candy may prove an aid in the cure of epilepsy. The latest theory is that epilepsy can be cured by regulation of diet and mode of living, according to Dr. James Boober, noted dietician, in an address here. This is a directly opposite premise from that heretofore considered in the treatment of the disease.

"Punishment of a prisoner in an Illinois prison by sentencing him to bread and water brought to light the fact that starvation brought temporary relief to epileptics," declared Dr. Boober. "Research into the question led to the discovery in the blood of epileptics of a toxic compound, indicating that abnormal changes had occurred in the nutriment taken into their bodies.

"For experimentation purposes, three types of diets are being tried out by authorities to determine which is the most beneficial in the treatment of the disease. The first consists of little more than water and glucose, which is the ultimate form to which all sugars and pure candies are reduced before they can be assimilated by the body. The second diet consists of a high proportion of carbohydrate (bread, rice and potatoes in considerable quantities), and the third diet contains a high proportion of meat and fat ingredients. It is hoped that one of these diets or a combination of them, will make the composition of the epileptic's blood approach normal.

"If glucose, or candy, is found to be of benefit in the treatment, there will be a definite medicinal reason for using confectionery, aside from its value as a high energy and fatigue relieving food."

SAINT-GAUDENS BACK FROM ART HUNT

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—"The greatest change in the art situation in Europe today has taken place in Germany," said Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, when he arrived in this country yesterday on the Mauretania. Mr. Saint-Gaudens has been abroad for four months, visiting the studios of Europe's leading artists in search of paintings to exhibit in the twenty-sixth international exhibition, which opens in October. In Berlin an official luncheon was given for Mr. Saint-Gaudens, and in Rome he was received by Mussolini.

"In Germany," continued Mr. Saint-Gaudens, "art has become completely modernist. As a matter of fact, advanced art is the only art that the German government and leaders in German art circles acknowledge. They have made it quite clear that if they are not represented by the picture which they gave us for the international, they would prefer not to be represented at all.

"This year, more than ever before, official interest in the exhibition has been evidenced by European governments, especially those of Germany and Italy. Baron Maltzan, the German ambassador to the United States, explained to me that Germany was exceptionally eager to share in this exhibition. Baron Maltzan maintains that the three important ways in which countries can come to know, and to understand, and to like one another are through art, athletics and science.

GERMAN ON JURY.

"As far as Germany is concerned, too, this year is of special importance since, for the first time since the war, there is to be a German member on the jury of award—Karl Hofer, one of their foremost artists.

"Contrasting with Germany, in Italy very radical art has not achieved great success. It is not self-supporting and, despite official backing, it is arousing a distinct note of disappointment among its apostles. There is, however, an increasing proportion of young men who are trying to express themselves in the modern idea, like Felice Casorati, the Italian member of our jury of award.

"Mussolini is keenly interested in our exhibition," said Saint-Gaudens. "When I saw him in Rome he declared that art must occupy the same place in Italy's present greatness as it did in the past. He expressed the hope that Italy's former glory in the realm of art would be repeated and that Italy would experience another renaissance.

"'Contemporary Italian art,' he said, 'must reflect and make a permanent record of the Italy of today for future generations. The Carnegie international is a means of fostering understanding of our art in other countries, especially in the United States, where there are so many of our people. This exhibition makes for international unity. Art is just as important in the world as it ever was. It is always basically essential, because the fruit of our imaginations is the only thing worth while in life.'"

ENGLAND LITTLE CHANGED.

"I have already spoken of the situation in Germany and Italy," continued Saint-Gaudens. "In England there is scarcely any alteration from last year, nor in France. In Spain milder searchers after novelty, such as Solana and Togores, are coming to the fore. In the other European countries there exist as always a few outstanding men. Austria claims Kokoschka, the great man of Central Europe, rather advanced and wild. Svabinsky is of first importance in Czechoslovakia, of a rich and sensuous manner.

"In this present Carnegie Exhibition you will see, perhaps as never before, how youth is recognized today. For nearly half our exhibition is devoted to works of men who have not yet turned 40; a tribute to the young idea in all lands.

"There are about 14 countries represented. On the assumption that each land splits itself into five cliques, there are probably about 70 aspects of art shown by about 300 paintings, or four or five paintings to an aspect.

"It is fascinating to watch this temperamental barometer of taste go up and down. I am absolutely confident that no one will like it all; and I am content. For the part of the all that one man does not like will rarely be the same part of the all that his neighbor objects to."

EXPLAINS PLAN

Mr. Saint-Gaudens then explained the plan for the coming International which is to be different from the 25 preceding ones. Hitherto it has been the aim of this annual exhibition to show one example of each of all the important painters in Europe and the United States. This year, however, for the first time, it is planned to exhibit one-third of the leading men of the various countries, but to give this third an opportunity to display their talents to the best advantage by showing from three to five pictures each. In succeeding years the Institute then plans to request other groups of equally important artists to exhibit in a similar manner.

On the Jury of Award, in addition to Karl Hofer from Germany and Felice Casorati from Italy, there will be Maurice Greiffenhagen from England and Maurice Denis from France. They will award the prizes in company with four American painters, Eugene Speicher, Eugene Savage, Horatio Walker and Abram Poole. This jury will meet in Pittsburgh on September 20.

After the close of the exhibition in Pittsburgh on December 4 the entire European section will be shown in New York at the Brooklyn Museum, and in San Francisco at the Palace of the Legion of Honor. This is in accordance with the policy of the Carnegie Institute to tour the exhibition after showing it in Pittsburgh. It is being shown in New York for the second time. In going to San Francisco, it will be for the first showing west of the Rocky Mountains.

THICK FOG BALKS FRENCH OCEAN FLIERS

PLANE FORCED BACK AFTER START

LE BOURGET, Sept. 2—(AP)—Heavy fog over the French country side balked the [illegible] Blue Bird's attempt to fly to New York today.

The giant plane, piloted by [illegible] Givon and Pierre Corbu, after a beautiful takeoff at [illegible] a. m. was back over Le Bourget in less than two hours. The [illegible] almost another full hour circling the field, hoping the fog would lighten, but when it [illegible] at 9 o'clock it began dumping the gasoline tanks.

By 10 the load had been reduced from 8,600 litres (about 2,000 gallons) to [illegible] gallons and the lightened ship was landed gracefully, her pilot and navigator bitterly disappointed over their failure.

The Blue Bird had proceeded about [illegible] miles when she turned back. The plane was then over the rolling country between Rambouillet and Beauce.

BASEBALL CZAR'S HOME SAVED BY NEIGHBORS

REVEAL FATAL AIR CRASH ON GLACIER

VIENNA, Sept. 2—(AP)—A strange aviation accident has been disclosed through the finding of the wreckage of a Jugoslav military airplane on a glacier in the Voralberg sector, just below Isabella Peak, with her pilot still alive, although injured, and her observer frozen to death.

The machine was one of a group of 13 which left Belgrade for Prague Saturday. This one alone failed to reach its destination. It was found near the Reutlinger Shelter by Alpine guides.

The pilot, a Jugoslav subaltern, was found near the machine alive but with both legs broken. The body of the observer, Col. Petrovich, was found frozen some distance from the plane.

The colonel evidently had gone in search of assistance and had lost his way. He collapsed a few hundred yards from salvation.

G. O. P. REVOLT IN COUNTY

Evidences of scattered revolts against the Republican organization judicial slate continued to crop up today, indorsements of independents by meetings in Carnegie and Homestead causing considerable talk in the City-County building.

In Carnegie last night a meeting of Republicans from the first and second districts indorsed six of the nine organization judicial candidates, dropping Judges Carnahan, Ford and McVicar, and substituting Judges Martin and Gray and Frank B. Patterson.

Many at the Homestead meeting were foreign-born citizens. There the entire slate was indorsed with the exception of Judge McVicar, Patterson being substituted.

Miss Dorothy Burnett Becomes Bride Of Lloyd F. Hunt at Church Wedding

THE marriage of Miss Dorothy Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Burnett, of Raleigh street, Squirrel Hill, and Lloyd F. Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell D. Hunt, of Los Angeles, was solemnized last night at 7:30 o'clock in Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. W. S. Lockard. The bride wore white transparent velvet and tulle trimmed with silver, with a veil of Brussels lace falling over a tulle train from a lace cap trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Helen M. Decker, of Hawley, Pa., as maid of honor, appeared in gold taffeta touched with orchid, and carried lavender dahlias, while frocks of taffeta in two shades of orchid trimmed with gold were worn by the bride's other attendants, Miss Esta Mae Burnett, a sister; Mrs. E. R. Nary, Mrs. H. M. Landis and Miss Martha Parsons. Their flowers were gold and bronze dahlias. W. F. Grimes, of Pasadena, was best man and the ushers included S. B. Griscom, of Los Angeles; J. H. Ashbaugh, of Wilkinsburg; E. R. Nary, of Squirrel Hill, and E. M. Loupe, of Youngstown. A reception in the Burnett home followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, their daughter, Miss Louise Evans, and son, Oliver Evans, of South Negley avenue, have returned home after spending the summer at Hyannisport, Cape Cod, and Watch Hill. Before their return to Pittsburgh, they motored through the White Mountains, Canada and the Adirondacks.

Her veil of net held with a band of Brussels lace is an heirloom in the family. She carried lilies of the valley and lavender and white orchids. Miss Lucille Sayre Scribner, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in orchid taffeta, while the bridesmaids, Miss Effie Sharp of Elyria and Miss Christine Harwood of Kansas City, O., wore orange taffeta. They carried Dresden bouquets. Judson Scribner, niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing lavender organdie and carrying a colonial bouquet. FLOWER SHOW DRAWS BIG CROWD AT MT. LEBANON

Most everybody in Mt. Lebanon turned out yesterday for the flower show which the Woman's Club put on in Mrs. J. A. McEwen's orchard. And a lovely sight it was, too, what with table after table of beautiful blossoms—all grown by the club members—and the pretty summery frocks of the exhibitors and their guests, and the trees casting their delicate shadow tracery over it all. There must have been every flower known to home gardeners in that exhibit, huge dahlias gorgeous in their fall coloring; great long sprays of delphinium, nine different varieties of roses, gladioli, dignified and tall; impudent zinnias; tiny, sweet faced pansies and all the rest of the flower family, which brought a great long list of ribbons and honorable mentions for their owners. No less interesting were the fruits and vegetables, jellies, canned and baked goods and, off in another section of the place, several attractive centerpiece exhibits which gave the judges considerable thought in their choosing. Mrs. Paul Bolger, who walked away with several of the flower prizes as well, was awarded the blue ribbon for her centerpiece of a mixed bouquet in an amethyst crystal bowl and tray and amethyst candlesticks with pink candles. Mrs. B. H. Cannon, with vari-colored snapdragons and a green crystal set, was awarded second and Mrs. W. L. Williams, Jr., given honorable mention for a dainty and exceedingly simple arrangement in white and blue, with tiny china swans for the flower holders.

Mrs. George H. Fox walked away with the vegetable prize for a basket of corn, rhubarb, string beans, tomatoes and beets and Mrs. J. G. Gilfillan won first in the fruits for a flat basket of luscious big peaches. Among other prize winners were

KILLING BILLS IN COMMITTEE SCORED

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 2.—A sensation was created in the final meeting of the American Bar Association today by a committee report urging an appeal to the country against "the deadly influence of powerful senators," who block favored legislation in committee rooms.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, second ranking Democratic member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and Representative Graham, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, were named in the report for persistent opposition to a bill which would authorize the Supreme Court to prescribe uniform rules and forms for proceedings in law for the federal district courts throughout the country.

Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, was elected president at today's session. John H. Voorhees, Sioux Falls, S. D., treasurer, and William P. MacCracken, Jr., Chicago, secretary, were re-elected.

The report, submitted by the committee on uniform judicial procedure, declares that although 92 senators and more than 80 per cent of the House membership have pledged support of the bill, Walsh and Graham have kept it in committee during the last two sessions of Congress.

"There ought to be some way of overcoming the personal legislative influence of a character that can defeat a majority, the public will, and the administration of justice by smothering bills in committee," the report said.

Veteran members of the Bar Association in the fifteenth annual convention regard this language as without parallel for directness and vigor in a committee report touching federal legislation.

Chairman of the legislative committee of the Dothan (Ala.) Business and Professional Women's Club; state director of the Pratt Memorial Fund; a member of the Martha Washington Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; a personal friend of the late President Harding, by whom she was appointed the only woman postmaster in the state of Alabama; a state director in the Alabama League of Women Voters; chairman of its Muscle Shoals and living costs committee, and landscape gardener by profession—that is Mrs. Minnie Y. Fritts, of Dothan, Ala., who was a guest of the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club at luncheon yesterday in Kaufmann's.

Mrs. Fritts talked informally to the club members, telling them how she happened to go to Dothan from her Ohio home when her son was one of Ohio's 40,000 enlisted men in camp, and of her part in the organization of Dothan's B. P. W. Mrs. Fritts was introduced by Miss Mary Jane Clarke, who announced a meeting of the club in the Fort Pitt Hotel next Thursday night, when Miss Margaret Louise Kirschner, official delegate to the national convention in California, will make her report.

Mrs. C. A. Price, a member of the Crafton Woman's Club, will leave for New York next Tuesday and will sail two days later on the Tuscania with the American Legion. Mrs. Price expects to remain abroad nearly two months and will visit relatives in Wales before returning. Mrs. N. D. Brandt, another Crafton member, also will leave on the American Legion trip, planning to attend the convention and later make a trip through France and Italy and a stay in London.

In the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church last night at 8 o'clock, the marriage of Miss Viola Margaret Eichleay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Eichleay, of Sinney street, and Robert S. Snitger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Snitger, of McKeesport, was solemnized by the Rev. Thomas R. Courtice. The bride wore satin and old lace and her tulle veil was secured with orange blossoms. She carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Carl W. Seigwarth was matron of honor, appearing in pink taffeta with hat to match, while taffeta frocks shading from pale pink to deep rose were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Mary Frances Vastine, of Danville, Ky.; Miss Margaret Winters, Miss Margaret Loeffler and Miss Myrtle Sexauer, of this city. Similar gowns were worn by the junior bridesmaids, Margaret Eichleay and Josephine Fulton. They carried pink roses. The flower girls, Marjorie Reno and Jean McCann, wore pink taffeta with poke bonnets and showered rose petals in the bridal path. Kline Fulmer, of Cleveland, was best man and the ushers included John Eichleay, Jr., Carl W. Seigwarth, William Applegate, Allan Hollis, Robert Clark and Elmer Serena. A dinner and reception in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association followed the ceremony. After an eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Snitger will live in McKeesport.

Miss Mary Ray, of Knoxville, and Miss Doris Saurman, of North Negley avenue, entertained Wednesday afternoon in the latter's home with a shower in honor of Miss Elizabeth Briant, of Sheraden. Miss Briant's marriage to Alfred McClung Lee II, of Oakmont, will be solemnized September 15.

Lawrence Stallings Writes Sequel to "What Price Glory" For Raoul Walsh to Produce

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.

LOUISE FAZENDA spent Tuesday in New York. The only trousseau she could buy for her approaching marriage to Hal Wallis, publicity director for Warners, had to be purchased in that one day. Louise and Mrs. Beth Fairbanks, the mother of young Douglas Fairbanks, who have been on location with the Will Rogers Company in Washington, left the Capital one night and returned the next night.

"At that," said Louise, "I had my troubles getting permission to spend 24 hours in New York.'

Louise, so rumor says, and she does not deny the report, will marry Hal Wallis in October, as soon as her divorce becomes final. "The Texas Steer" company, which, by the by, has been having some bad weather, left Washington last night for Arizona where Will Rogers will make his exterior scenes on a cattle ranch.

Think of traveling 3,000 miles and then only getting a few hours' glimpse of New York.

Speaking of marriage, the report that young Doug Fairbanks, who is only about 18 years of age, is to marry pretty Helene Costello, a sister of the gorgeous Dolores, seems to have been a matter of somebody's imagination. Miss Costello, I hear on reliable authority, will shortly announce her engagement to Jack Regan, the son of a well known Long Island family.

There seems to be a general belief on the coast that Lawrence Stallings will reverse the usual order of things and hand over his motion picture sequel of "What Price Glory" to the stage. It was Raoul Walsh who prevailed upon Mr. Stallings to give him a follow up on "What Price Glory," Fox Company's most profitable movie. And this author, who is never at a loss when it comes to writing satirically of the World War, at once went to work to do the job. Now comes the rumor from Hollywood that the scenario turned out so well there is a possibility that it may one day be dramatized. Raoul Walsh will finish with "Sadie Thompson," Gloria Swanson's next picture in two weeks and the Stallings picture will probably be well on its way in another month.

Listen to this, my friends. Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, having exhausted the Army, Navy and firemen uniforms, are now to don the soup and fish and do a society play. Their next burlesque for Paramount Famous Players is to be a comedy called "We're in Society Now." It is an original by Grove Jones, with Frank Strayer wielding the megaphone.

"The Man Who Came Back" earned a fortune for W. A. Brady and all who were concerned in its production as a stage drama. Now comes Warner brothers with "The Come Back," a motion picture story that bears some resemblance to the Brady play, although not enough to cause anyone any anxiety. Harvey Gates, the author, wrote it with Monte Blue in mind, and Monte, being agreeable, it will be filmed immediately with Lloyd Bacon directing. Monte, who spent a month in Catalina with his wife and baby on a vacation, has returned, and he writes to say he is all ready and eager for work on this next picture. In a nutshell "The Come Back" is the tale of the remaking of a man whom life almost passed by.

Sheriff Fifty Times Is Film Record of Robert Burns

"Fifty times a sheriff" is the unique record set by Robert Burns when he played the aforementioned official of law and order in "The Gambler's Game," a Tom Tyler western just completed.

Burns helped make the first western picture ever filmed, for the old Vitagraph company in 1910, and has been riding and roping ever since. He left the management of a wild west show to go into the movies.

Colonel William Cody, famous as "Buffalo Bill," rode the little Bob Burns on his knee, and his stories of daring exploits inspired the youngster to learn the thrilling stunts of horsemanship for which he has long been famous on the screen. He has held two world's records, one in the 100-yard dash, the other in a contest for harnessing, driving and unharnessing a 12-horse relay.

ED WYNN IS COMING IN NEW WHITE SHOW

Ed Wynn, the star of George White's new musical comedy, "Manhattan Mary," which opens the season at the Nixon Monday night, September 5, is called "the perfect fool," but he is no fool. He is said to be the highest priced comedian in the United States.

Clark and McCullough, in "The Ramblers," will reopen the Alvin Monday afternoon, Labor Day, September 5. The Alvin has undergone alterations from pit to dome, and many attractive appointments will further the appeal of this successful show house. "The Ramblers" boasts of 14 scenes, 129 people and 425 laughs. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday will prevail in the Alvin.

Opening with a special holiday matinee in the Pitt, Labor Day, the George Sharp Production Stock Company next week will present the comedy-drama, "Three Wise Fools." Produced originally by John Golden, it made a hit in New York and was taken to London, where it duplicated its New York success.

In the Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis, beginning September 5, Ned Wayburn will present his girls, who will entertain with singing, dancing and comedy.

"Around the World Revue" is booked for the Gayety next week.

He Is Coming -:- She Is Here -:- The Man Behind

DAVID WARFIELD, noted actor, is expected to attend the opening of the new Penn, of which he is one of the owners.

ANNE H. DORNIN is showing a couple of men in the Penn what's what. Miss Dornin, from New York, who is head of the decorations department of Loew's Inc., has been working in the new theater all week to get it ready for the opening, supervising the decorative touches.

MARCUS LOEW, head of Loew's Inc., associated with the United Artists in the control of Pittsburgh's newest theater.

MANY MILES OF WIRE IN NEW PENN ORGAN

More than 500 miles of fine wire have been used in the construction of the mammoth organ installed in the new Loew's and United Artists' Penn Theater. It is the largest, most complete and varied instrument of its kind ever brought to Pittsburgh.

The organ contains a variation of percussion effects such as harps, chimes, xylophones, drums, sleigh bells, vibrating bells, glockenspiels, oboe, flute, clarinet and tuba in addition to the solemn pipe organ tones. Its strings are said to be the nearest approach to violin music yet achieved. There is a second touch fitted for use in connection with almost every musical instrument in the organ.

NEW WILLOWS BOOKS AL LENTZ ORCHESTRA

Continuing their policy of providing food, service and entertainment, the owners of the New Willows, Conforti and Tucci, who also operate the Nixon restaurant, have booked 10 prominent orchestras to appear for two weeks each in the New Willows during the fall and winter season.

The first orchestra to be featured at the up-river dinner-dance resort is that of Al Lentz and his record makers and vaudeville players. Mr. Lentz will be on hand personally to conduct the orchestra. Each night there will be diversified programs with specialties by members of the orchestra.

Harvard Wants Prints Of Griffith Films For Library

Harvard University considers David Wark Griffith's contribution to the art of the motion picture a matter of historical importance. In fact, the Harvard film committee has requested Mr. Griffith to present the Harvard Motion Picture Endowment Library with prints of his earliest pictures. R. A. Bahr, who is now on the west coast, presented the request. While there is no doubt Mr. Griffith must feel pleased at this tribute to his technique, at the same time he may feel those early pictures are no real sample of his work.

Mr. Mix Hobnobs With "Highbrow" Horses; Tony Gets Jealous

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2.—Tom Mix is no respecter of anyone's stables. He has a few thoroughbred horses himself, so what does a millionaire's Arabian steeds mean in his life? Accompanied by James Quirk of photoplay fame, Tom spent the day with Kellogg, the corn flakes king. He was taken to the stables and introduced to horses valued at half a million.

Did Tom look awed? No, not in the least.

Did the horses? No. They had a mutual admiration society with Tom thrilling the spectators with cowboy stunts on several of these same million-dollar animals.

When Tony heard about it he refused to speak to Tom. Tom says he was plain jealous.

Conrad's "Victory" New Film Vehicle For Bancroft

"Victory," written by Joseph Conrad, will be the vehicle for the next starring picture of George Bancroft. That actor had a sailor role recently as a gunner's mate in "Old Ironsides." No feminine lead has been selected for "Victory," but Josef von Sternberg will direct. Production is expected to begin in two weeks.

Bancroft has just completed a comedy, being featured with Chester Conklin in "Tell It to Sweeney." His work in his previous picture, "Underworld," proved so impressive, however, that Paramount officials revised their plan to utilize him as a laugh-maker and outlined a series of strong dramatic plays in which he will be given stellar rank. The Conrad story is the first of the new group.

WILLIAM AUSTIN CAST WITH FLORENCE VIDOR

William Austin, who played an important comedy role in Bebe Daniels' "Swim, Girl, Swim,' will have a featured role in Florence Vidor's "Honeymoon Hate," his first assignment under a new contract with Paramount.

CLARA BOW INTRODUCES NEW BOBBED HAIR STYLE

Clara Bow, the flapper star of Paramount pictures, has started a new bobbed hair style, the "Medusa," in which the locks wave wildly in the breezes. She will display it in her new picture, "Red Hair," by Elinor Glyn, now being filmed.

HONEY BEES SEGREGATED FOR FRUIT STAND RAIDS

GLENDALE, Cal., Sept. 2.—Beekeepers have been zoned by the city council. The bees started the trouble by buzzing around fruit stands. Owners of the stands set out flypaper, saying the bees ate their fruit. Beekeepers objected to their bees being caught on the flypaper. The new law ordains that bees shall not be kept within 500 feet of any habitation, except that of the bee owner. A maximum penalty of $100 fine and 30 days imprisonment is provided.

FORD'S NEW MODELS NOT YET ASSEMBLED

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 2.—Officials of the Ford Motor Company denied that the actual assembling of the new Ford car had been started in the Detroit plant. They admitted, however, that they are preparing for the early assembling of the cars at all the assembly plants of the company, including the one here.

NEW CLUB CABARET TO OPEN LABOR DAY

The left wing of the first floor of the El Tower Hotel, 5660 Munhall road, Squirrel Hill, has been rented to William Deane, who, on Labor Day, will open a new cabaret and supper club there. Marty Schramm and his Golden Gate Six have been engaged for the premiere of the new club, which will feature Billy Deane's Little Bohemia Revue in two shows nightly.

Mr. Deane, on Labor Day, takes charge of the main dining room of the hotel, which he will conduct in addition to the supper club.

SUNDAY SPURNS MILLION OFFER

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Sept. 2.—Billy Sunday, who is conducting an evangelistic campaign here announced that he had refused an offer of $1,000,000 made by a motion picture producing company to go into the "movies." Another offer of $10,000 a month had been made for him to appear in vaudeville, he said.

"No man ever had a more flattering offer to side-step than I did," he added, "but I turned it down."

TAKE MAN, WIFE FOR PASSING BAD CHECK

Outwitted by an employe of a downtown piano store, Harold Taylor, 49, of 320 Cedar avenue, who came here three months ago from Chattanooga, Tenn., was held for court charged with passing worthless checks by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today.

Taylor, accompanied by his wife, yesterday tendered a check for $684 drawn on a bank in Forrest City, Ark., in payment for a piano. A clerk cashed Taylor's personal check for $10 to give the store time to communicate with the bank, which reported "no funds" in the name of "S. C. Moore," used by Taylor in signing checks.

Mrs. Taylor's hearing was delayed until she can leave the Allegheny General Hospital, where she was removed last night when she became ill. She also is charged with passing worthless checks.

Funds for the building of a gallery were provided also in the wills of Mrs. Nelson and their daughter, Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood.

Church's Electric Sign Spared for the Good It Has Done

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2—Because of the good work it has done in the past, an electric sign reading "Christ Died for Our Sins," will not be torn down in accordance with a general order issued by Christian P. Paschen, building commissioner.

By error this sign, which is said to have saved at least two persons from suicide, was included in the list ordered removed from buildings in the Wilson avenue district.

The sign appears on the North Shore Congregational Church.

LEAGUE COUNCIL BEGINS PUBLIC SESSIONS

By International News Service.

GENEVA, Sept. 2.—The League of Nations council began its public sessions today with a tribute to the late King Ferdinand, of Rumania.

As the opening session advanced, M. De Brouckere, of Belgium, made a report upon the recent international press conference, advocating similar international meetings in the future. Lord Burnham, of England, praised the American delegates to the press conference, saying their cooperation was of great value. Foreign Minister Stresemann, of Germany; Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary; M. Boncour, of France, and others likewise lauded the results of the press conference.

During the day Foreign Minister Vandervelde, of Belgium, received an urgent recall from the Belgian cabinet at Brussels and departed by airplane. It was understood that the cabinet demanded an explanation as to why the foreign minister had entered into an agreement without the consent of the cabinet, for an investigation of German accusations that Belgian civilians "sniped" German troops

Sally Refuses to Marry Ted Sloan; Nye Spends Sunday In the Jerome Manse

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family which consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY down town afternoons. In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman. The only man in whom she is interested is JOHN NYE, whose real estate offices are across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary, upon Sally's recommendation, and Millie instantly begins to "shine up" to him. He becomes blindly infatuated with her, and Sally is heartsick and jealous. Beau and Mabel spend most of their earnings on themselves. Beau suddenly blossoms out with so many new clothes and so much pocket money that Sally becomes suspicious of him. Then Ted Sloan, angry with her because of her coldness towards him, tells her that Beau got more than $100 from him by means of a "raised" check, and gave him a bad one in return. Ted holds both and threatens to turn Beau over to the law. Frantic, Sally borrows $100 from Mr. Peevey, but when she turns it over to Beau in order that he may pay Ted, he keeps it and elopes with his girl, MABEL WILMOT. Mrs. Jerome is crushed when she hears of the elopement. Then Millie announces that John Nye is coming for supper that night, and Sally, oddly hurt and jealous, invites Ted Sloan.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"YOU don't want me. I get you!" Ted spoke briskly, and he turned away from her and stood at the screen door, biting on his pipe-stem and staring out at the blue October sky.

"You're the world's best dancer," said Sally, rattling the cups and saucers in the pan. "And you're a good friend to me most of the time. And I DO want you. I want you to come up here for supper tonight at 6, and I want you to take me to a movie afterward—or for a ride. Will you?"

No answer.

"You see, Millie's boss has fallen for her, and she's asked him for supper," Sally explained, marveling at the lightness with which she could speak of John Nye now. "And I don't want to sit here alone with them like an old maid aunt. So I thought maybe you'd make a fourth. And would you go and get some eggs for me if you can find a store that's open? I used the last egg for Mother's breakfast, and Millie wants a chocolate cake . . . ."

"Millie wants the earth and a corner lot in the moon, if you ask me!" grumbled Ted, who detested Millie with all his might and main. "If she wants a chocolate cake for her cutie, why can't she rustle it up herself? I wanted you to go for a drive today, doggone it."

But he went for the eggs, faithful slave that he was—at times.

A woman always finds a certain happiness in doing things for the man she loves—even if he happens not to love her.

Perhaps that is why so many stenographers in this world toil for some married man who is in love with his own wife, and toil so willingly and cheerfully.

Perhaps that is why so many wives, whose husbands have fallen out of love with them, go on mending their socks, cooking their meals, and bringing up their children with high hearts and certain joy.

But, at any rate, Sally Jerome sang all day as she swept and dusted the house, baked the chocolate cake, roasted the joint of beef, and whipped up the fluffiest of mayonnaise dressing in preparation for the coming of John Nye.

She went downstairs, too, and got some asters from Mrs. Sloan, who did not want to give them to her and showed that she didn't.

"I don't know as they're ready to cut," she said sourly, as Sally followed her out to the tiny square of backyard behind the building.

Sally never would have asked for them for herself. But there was very little that she wouldn't do for Millie. So she said nothing, but stood with her hands ready for the lovely pink and purple blooms that Ted's mother cut for her.

She took them upstairs and put some of them in a low glass bowl on the dining room table, and the rest of them on the top of the magazine rack in the shabby living room.

"Fix up everything to look as decent as you can," pleaded Millie. "I think a girl needs a nice background when she's entertaining a man in her own home."

But she did absolutely nothing, herself, toward making that background attractive. All day long she carried her clothes, her toilet articles, her little slumber-pillows, into Beau's room, and piled all of his belongings into his black tin trunk.

"There!" she cried at 5 o'clock, when the job was done. "I guess Mr. Beau won't bring his bride to that room now! And thank heaven, that I have a room of my own at last! I love you, Sally, but you do get in my way sometimes when I'm trying to dress."

She dressed herself in Sally's pale-blue frock—her best one. And Sally slipped into the old white mull that had been new three years ago.

"What do I care how I look?" she asked herself as she hooked it up before the dim mirror of her dresser. "John Nye won't be able to take his eyes off Millie—and I'm going to be working anyway."

She was in the kitchen, slicing lemons for tea, when John Nye arrived. She heard his car slither to a stop through the open windows, and as she heard it, it came to her that she had been listening breathlessly for that sound.

"Don't you be a simp!" she told herself fiercely, scowling at her reflection in the mirror above the sink. "He's not coming to see you, remember!"

She did not go into the living room until Ted came up the back stairs from the flat below. Then they went in together.

John Nye was sitting in Mrs. Jerome's chair and Millie was on the arm of it. They were both looking at a pale-pink aster that Millie was holding in one hand.

She glanced up, her eyes wide and shining.

"Mr. Nye thinks it's so wonderful that I have a little garden here in the city," she said in her sweet, fluting voice. "But I told him I just love flowers, and I've got to have them, no matter where I am."

For one awful second Sally thought that Ted Sloan was going to burst out laughing as he looked down at his mother's pink flower in Millie's hand. Ted had been known to give Millie away when she was telling one of her little "white lies."

"Did you grow those asters, Millie?" he asked bluntly, a broad grin on his face.

Millie nodded weakly, and hurried to introduce him to John Nye. Then she put the aster in John's buttonhole and danced out of the room, before Ted had time to say anything else about it.

"I must help Sally with the supper," she explained with the sweetest little housewifely air. "We always work together, and we get things done in no time."

But as soon as the door closed behind her she went, not to the kitchen, but to her bedroom, to add a fresh touch of powder and lipstick to her face.

Sally put the supper on the table alone, just as she always did.

She was proud of the table, too, proud of the bread-and-butter sandwiches, tied into little rolls; proud of the chocolate cake, with its sugar icing; proud of the snowy tablecloth that she had embroidered years before with her

VETERANS ONCE MORE .·. MOUNT GANGPLANK .·. LEAVE DOCKS ASTERN

"GANGWAY!"

Veterans of the World War once more filed up the gangplank, watched it drawn in, and left the docks astern. Members of the Eightieth Division, in convention here, with their friends and families boarded the river steamer Homer Smith for a ride down the river.

"GOOD-BYE!"

Color, bands, flags, good-byes, just like wartime days. Fred Funderwhite, James F. Kennedy and Mrs. Edward Geis waving their best as the boat started.

QUITS COLLEGE TO AID BRIDE STUDY MUSIC

How Lewis Kim, Pitt law student, secretly wed for four years to Miss Phyllis Geraldine Gray, of 5746 Howe street, sacrificed his law career ambitions and went to work in a five and ten cent store so his wife could study to become a concert pianist, was told today.

The girl, now close to fame in the music world, and the boy, working hard toward the goal of store manager, let out their secret and started housekeeping this week at the home of the girl's parents.

MEET IN CHURCH.

They met at church—the Wilkinsburg Presbyterian—and the courtship period was history in jig-time. A hurried trip to Wheeling and the two were Mr. and Mrs.—but to themselves only.

Kim was 20 then and Miss Gray was 16 and kissed. He was starting his first year at Pitt, and she was well past the scales in her music lessons.

Kim was in his junior year at the university when he dropped out, to start in the shipping room of a "five and ten" as the first step in the long climb to a good-paying position.

"Miss Gray" advanced in her music studies under Prof. Santiago Monguio, in Pittsburgh, and Prof. J. Warren Erb, in New York. She has given numerous studio recitals and expects to appear in concerts within a year.

Kim is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kim, [illegible] Wood street, Wilkinsburg. His wife's parents are Mr. and Mrs. S. Gray, who formerly lived in Wilkinsburg.

WEDS; SECRET FOUR YEARS

MRS. PHYLLIS GRAY KIM

Mrs. Kim continued her music study while her husband, Lewis Kim, whom she married secretly four years ago, gave up his law career to work in five-and-ten cent store.

PROTEST MADE ON RATES HERE

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 2.—Contending that the proposed tariff is discriminatory because it is applied only to Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Chicago, the Illinois Manufacturers' Association have objected to the charge of two and a half cents a hundred pounds on all bonded imported goods. Today the association filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition for a suspension of the charge. The two and a half cent rate, unless suspended, will become effective September 15, and applies to all carload traffic in and out of railroad freight houses in Chicago, Pittsburgh and Buffalo for the examination of United States customs officers.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO PROBE OHIO FLOGGING

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—George L. Trahern, chief of police at Kent, O., today asked Gov. Donahey to send a representative to investigate the reported flogging early Tuesday of Alfred Harris, Kent furniture dealer.

Harris stumbled into the Summit County jail at Akron declaring he had been abducted and flogged by eight masked men after he had refused to surrender a petition he was preparing to submit to the governor for an investigation of his recent arrest by Kent police on a vagrancy charge. In a speech at Akron he declared the flogging was the culmination of a verbal campaign he had waged against the police of his city whom he charged with bungling a murder investigation.

The Governor said that since Summit County authorities were going ahead with an inquiry he would not enter the case now.

Physicians said Harris was only slightly hurt.

Harris took Summit County officers last night to the scene of the reported whipping where they found a sack which he said was placed over his head. The ground revealed a number of footprints.

BOOST MORE, HE URGES

"The future of the church and state will be more secure if the adults of today will criticize less and encourage more," said Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, recently appointed general secretary of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, who assumed his new duties yesterday.

"There never before has been a time when so many young people were assuming places of responsibility and leadership," Dr. Craig said. "Our Christian colleges are becoming embarrassed by the number of young people who are anxious to take additional training for positions of leadership."

Varied Offers Deluge Miss Pittsburgh

Regardless of the outcome of the Atlantic City national bathing beauty pageant next week, busy days apparently are to follow for me once I return home. Many offers for my appearances are being received. In fact, the offers began to arrive the very Saturday I won the title of "Miss Pittsburgh 1927."

Contracts are being offered by theaters in all parts of the district. Of course, this has been the lot of titleholders and since they have always filled these engagements, there is scarcely any doubt that I, too, will capitalize the value of my name. Then, too, there are offers to be a model. Well, I am not exactly a fashion model, but if they think my services worth the offers being extended, it seems that I should make the most of it.

So it is that if I think preparing for the trip to the pageant has been cause for much thought, these offers mean that much more thinking and making of decisions upon my return. And if it has seemed that the days have been busy ones, the months to come will find me even more occupied. But it all goes with the title, I guess.

VICTIM IS DYING HUNT THUGS

Police and detectives are searching for two thugs who last night clubbed and robbed their victim on the bank of the Monongahela River under Brown's Bridge. The victim, who has not been identified, is reported dying in the Homestead Hospital, where he was taken there by persons who witnessed the attack.

Several persons swimming in the river saw the thieves beat up the victim. After clubbing him until he was unconscious, they robbed him. Other than the initials C. G. sewed inside his coat, no marks of identification could be found.

FIND CHILD LOST FROM CAMP

Marion Bradley, 2-year-old daughter of Bert L. Bradley, of New Philadelphia, O., who disappeared from a tourist camp near Washington, Pa., Monday, was found in Long Island, N. Y. City detectives last night received a wire from William Johnson, of New York, who was suspected of taking the child, saying the child was well and advising the parents to leave for New York.

BREATHES THROUGH TUBE FOUR YEARS; CURED

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 2.—Being able to breathe without a silver tube through her neck was the welcome birthday gift at Memorial Hospital to Ruth Bierly, 5, yesterday. She had been unable to breathe properly because of a trachea obstruction. She had made 150 trips to the operating room for treatment in four years.

TRIPLETS WEIGHING 15 POUNDS, GROSS, ARRIVE

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 2.—Triplets, two boys and a girl, weighing a total of 15 pounds, arrived last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hugar, of Lakemont, a suburb. The father is a chauffeur.

Women Soon May Dare To Look Mouse in Face, Says Will

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 2.—We certainly are pulling for that old lady aviator. Just because we can't pronounce either barrel of her name won't lessen our conception of her. She is the only titled person we ever heard of that did anything. If an old lady of 62 can fly across the ocean it certainly ought to muster up nerve enough in the rest of her sex to look a mouse in the face.

Paris reporters misquoted her, she said, about "easy" Parisian divorces.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

MIXED PEPPERS.

Men, like cats have no gratitude toward the woman who makes life a bed of ease for them; but they have a wholesome respect for the one who makes them hop around and keeps them anxiously guessing whether her next move will be a reproof or a pat on the head.

There are two times in a woman's life when her husband admits that she is absolutely flawless: the day before he marries her—and the day after he buries her.

HELEN ROWLAND

All the gossip you hear about a popular woman may not make a good case against her—but it makes awfully good conversation.

Nothing hurts a man worse than to be suspected by a woman, when he knows he's in the right—unless it is to be suspected by her, when he knows he's in the wrong.

Man is such a modest animal that he feels half undressed without his watch, and almost in the "altogether" if he happens to be caught without his cravat. Yet the moment he puts on a bathing suit, Narcissus himself could not be more naively charmed with his own image!

The average girl shows such Griselda-like patience in waiting for a man to propose matrimony, these days, that every man fancies he is getting a wife who will never run out of endurance.

"He brought me a rose!" blushed Grandmamma. "She let me kiss her hand!" boasted Grandpa. Quid pro quo! When the modern young man begins complaining about the high cost of loving these days, let him not forget that the first rule of the game is "so much for so much."

Men don't propose marriage any more; they merely SUGGEST it tentatively in a magnanimous moment, with a "take-it-or-leave-it" manner that makes you half ashamed to take advantage of them.

For the Lovelorn

Gretchen

DEAR MISS GALE:

Have come to you for some of your excellent advice. Agree with you on the drinking, smoking and kissing questions. Miss Gale, I am in my early teens. What should a girl my age do during the summer? When you are out with a fellow and he wants to kiss you and you say "no" and he does it [illegible] [illegible] you say to him? Hope to see this in print soon. Wishing you loads of luck. I remain

GRETCHEN.

Tennis, golf, swimming—there are lots of things for you to do in the summer, if sports are what you mean in your question. Tell the boy very seriously that you resent such treatment and that if he expects to keep your friendship he must respect your wishes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator From New York

DIGESTIVE ORGANS WORK LIKE FACTORY

HOW much do you know about your insides, or your "innards," as the old-timers say? It is probable you regard the stomach as the chief of the digestive organs. But it isn't.

You couldn't get along without the small intestine. It is that part of your body where the digestive processes of Nature do their most important work.

DR COPELAND

We speak of the small intestine and the large intestine. One is "small" and the other "large," because one tube is much thicker than the other. The small intestine is small in diameter, but it is extensive in its length, being more than 25 feet long.

This important passageway is a canal into which enters practically all the food taken into the stomach. It is a tube which doubles upon itself so many times that it is packed into a space less than a cubic foot in capacity.

The stomach is a sort of grinding-mill or breaker. Here the food is mixed and dissolved. When it is liquefied it is discharged from that container into the small intestine.

For the sake of convenience of description and because each part of the intestine has a particular work to do, the scientists have given names to the different divisions of the small intestine. It must be admitted, however, that these divisions are more or less arbitrary in their boundaries. It is almost as difficult to define the limits of one of them as it is to tell where Greenwich Village begins in New York City and where it ends.

The first part of the canal is called the "duodenum." This is the part of the intestine which is attached to the stomach. Into it is discharged the fluid or semi-fluid mass prepared by the stomach. When the food enters the intestines it is called "chyme."

The duodenum is less than a foot long and is shaped like the letter C. In the concavity of the C-shaped duodenum is the "pancreas." To the layman this organ is better known as the "sweetbread." It is six inches long, an inch and a half wide, half an inch thick, and weighs about three ounces.

In it is manufactured the pancreatic juice, about half a pint daily. This fluid and the bile combine with the chyme in the duodenum. The resulting mixture is a milky fluid, called the "chyle."

The bile helps to digest the fats. The pancreatic fluid converts the remaining starches into sugar. By the time the chyle leaves the duodenum it is ready for absorption into the blood.

The process of absorption takes place, to a great extent certainly, in the next portion of the intestine—the "jejunum," a stretch of the canal ten or a dozen feet long. Below this is the "ileum," extending another dozen feet. The lining membrane of the jejunum and ileum is thickly studded with tiny projections, called "villi."

You can see the value of this arrangement. It greatly increases the surface and gives the blood vessels a larger territory in which to work. It permits the blood to absorb the highly nourishing chyle and send it on its way round the body to feed every cell and fibre of the system.

We must wonder at the perfection of this creation of nature. If we take the proper food in correct quantities, drink plenty of water, have an abundance of rest and sleep, our digestive processes will go on like clockwork. It is by making a plaything of the stomach and by neglecting to care for the digestive organs, that we invite trouble. By decent care we may expect the digestive system to work perfectly for a century.

Horoscope

Saturday, September 3.

This is an uncertain day in planetary government, according astrology, and adverse influences are strong.

It is a time to sell, but buying should be delayed until a more auspicious rule of the stars prevails.

While there will be much business energy under this sway the judgment may not be good and initiative should be delayed.

All the signs promise much in the development of American business interests and increase of national prosperity.

This rule of the stars is not a promising one for our navy and appears to presage great differences of opinion regarding it.

Deceit and even treachery on the part of a foreign power apparently friendly to the United States is prognosticated.

As the autumn advances many names will be added to those called great, who are to close their careers.

It has been prophesied that the year 1927 will be the date for the deaths of men and women who long have enjoyed fame and honor in the artistic and learned professions.

Bermuda now comes under a direction of the stars which is held to presage earthquakes and severe storms.

A London astrologer prophesies for the United States a movement of troops, which may be merely a gesture of strength.

Moscow is to succeed in many high aims and national reforms are to contribute to the progress of the city.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year favorable to work and promising for large financial returns.

Children born on this day may meet certain obstacles in their paths, but they are likely to succeed. Politics and religion are likely to interest them most.

Baked Apple Sauce.

Pare and core apples and cut in quarters. Allow one cup sugar and one-half cup water to two quarts apples. Place them in deep dish. Apple sauce baked requires less sugar than when stewed, for long cooking in oven develops natural sweetness of apple. Cover closely and cook one and one-half hours. If cooked too fast steam will cause them to burst and mushy sauce will be result, but moderate cooking leaves each piece whole in delicious, cidery sirup. Let apples cook in dish without touching fruit. This is the old-fashioned way to make apple sauce.

What Men Expect of Girls

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX,
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

NOT long ago, a letter was printed signed, "Do Tell Everything."

The writer, one of the many modern girls who are puzzled about modern young men, asked frankly, in effect, the following question: "What do modern young men expect of girls?" She appealed to young men to answer her question. Not one—but hundreds—of young men accepted her challenge. A number of girls and older women also wrote their comments on her frank, direct criticisms.

I sincerely wish I could print every letter I have received on the subject. Since that is impossible, due to lack of space, I shall from time to time, quote from representative replies.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes "Just Twenty-five," "I am wondering whether the very modern girl, signing herself 'Do Tell Everything,' has looked very far for the answer to some of her questions.

"You are right when you say, 'Colonel Lindbergh is not the only one,' and the sooner the so-called modern girls realize that, the better. I have resided in a large American city now for five years, and the conditions are such in my opinion, that any young man has all he can do to keep himself from developing into a rowdy and boor.

"I never bother with such girls. Most of them make me feel disgusted, and the other kind seem to be hard to meet. But it all rests with the girls themselves how the boys will treat them.

"You girls are foolish to let a boy kiss and pet you right away. I do not care for that sort of thing. Friendship is based upon fine thoughts and lofty ideals, and it is the girl, herself, who keeps these thoughts uppermost in a young man's mind.

"I wonder whether 'Do Tell Everything' ever looks at the question from this point of view. She admits being a very modern girl, so the chances are she has overstepped herself in that direction, as most girls seem to do nowadays.

"I would advise her to wait and pay no attention to so-called sheiks. Some day the right one will come along. You see I'm hoping for something like that, myself. But being just a serious young man, and not a sheik, maybe my advice will sound flat.

"JUST TWENTY-FIVE."

Thank you for your good letter, "Just Twenty-five." It is safe to say that thousands of girls who read it, far from considering it flat, will wish earnestly they might number young men like you among their friends, and will gladly ponder and follow your advice.

As complement to your letter I shall quote from that of a young married woman who modeled her life along lines similar to those you suggest and has found her reward.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," she writes. "Although I am a married woman and the mother of four children, I am very much interested in your articles, because they give me an opportunity to keep up with what the present younger generation are doing.

"I read so much about petting and necking. May I say a few words on the subject? Before I was married, I was considered the most popular girl in our section. I did not gain my popularity through petting, but by demanding respect from all the young men with whom I came in contact.

"When a young man took me out and asked me for a kiss, I would simply say, 'Have you a sister? If you have, I am sure you would not like to have her kiss every Tom, Dick and Harry. Just because she was good enough to be his companion for an evening's amusement, does not mean she must cheapen herself for him. My brother is as fond of me as you are of your sister, or would be if you had a sister. I would not disappoint him.'

"This simple statement won for me respect and a husband who adores me. I have been married nine years and my husband says the more he is in my company the more he loves me.

"I have four lovely children and could not be happier if I tried. My advice to girls is, to keep their self-respect at all costs. It will pay to do so in the end.

"A HAPPY WIFE AND MOTHER."

Here, girls, you have the frank statement of one modern young man, who writes with sincerity and charm of what men expect and hope for from girls. Also, you have heard from a happy wife and mother the secret of her popularity as a girl, and of her success as a sweetheart and wife.

Isn't it worth while to be true to your very best, your real self? Express that self only, then the right kind of man will recognize you for what you are—the sweet, womanly modern girl, destined to be the adored helpmate of the best type of modern man.

WHAT'S the ANSWER?

1. What was an Auto da Fe?
2. Who wrote "Lorna Doone?"
3. Is there a height above which airplanes cannot go?
4. What is the Iron Crown?
5. Why do we hear sounds like waves when we hold a sea-shell to the ear?
6. Where is Charing Cross? Where did it get its name?
7. What is a Papal Bull? Why is it called a Bull?
8. For whom is Delaware named?
9. From where do we get our word "tantalize?"
10. What is the Rialto? Where is it?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions:

1. The ancient Sicilians believed that during the seven days before and the seven days after the winter solstice (Dec. 21), the halcyon or kingfisher brooded over her young in a floating nest upon the surface of the water, and that during that time the seas were calm and could be safely navigated. That is why the phrase "halcyon days" means a period of peace, happiness, and prosperity.
2. Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin in 1793.
3. It is supposed that different races have different colored skins because they live in different climates. In hot and sunny countries the exposure to sunburn has darkened the skins of the inhabitants.
4. St. Franciis of Assisi, founder of the Franciscan order in the Roman church, is said to have preached to the birds.
5. The normal diet should contain carbohydrates, proteins, and fats.
6. St. Mark, the Evangelist, was not one of the Twelve Apostles. According to tradition he was converted by St. Peter and became his favorite diisciple.
7. "Cabal" is employed in politics to designate a secret and dangerous association. Charles II of England was surrounded by a ministry which was unprincipled in character. The members were Clifford, Ashley, Buckingham, Arlington and Lauderdale. Their initials spell cabal, which since that time has had its present meaning.
8. The origin of wearing bridal wreaths of orange blossoms is Saracenic, and was introduced into Europe at the time of the Crusades. The flowers mean purity.
9. According to Robert Browning, the good news that was carried from Ghent to Aix in his famous poem was imaginary. There is no historical basis for the poem.
10. Queen Elizabeth (1533-1603) always bore the title "King of France," asserting that if by the action of the Salic law she could not be queen, she would be king. The kings of England bore the title of King of France for 432 years, until 1800.

FEDERAL RADIO HEAD HERE ON INSPECTION

Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, visited Pittsburgh yesterday in a tour of inspection of radio stations of his radio district, which includes Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. In discussing the radio station as a commercial proposition he stated he saw no possible way for anyone to profit, except in good will of the public, by the establishment of a radio station.

He told of the problems of his commission in attempting to assign the 690 broadcasting stations with only 96 possible broadcasting channels. While here Admiral Bullard inspected Station KDKA.

Sally Refuses to Marry Ted Sloan; Nye Spends Sunday In the Jerome Manse own hands, proud of the old silver teapot, polished until it shone like glass.

She was pink and bright-eyed with pride when the four of them sat down to the table 15 minutes later.

Everything was going beautifully. The talk was cheerful, the late afternoon sun flooded the room, the roast beef was done to a turn, the salad was crisp and cold.

"I'm glad everything is turning out so well for poor Millie," thought Sally, pouring the tea into her mother's egg-shell china cups.

"I haven't eaten roast beef like this in years," John Nye said, with appreciation. "Millie said she'd fix up just a pot-luck meal, but it seems to me—"

"Pot luck?" echoed a loud voice from the doorway, and Beau and Mabel burst into the room, banging the door behind them. They brought a heavy odor of cigarets, liquor and strong perfume with them.

"Pot luck? What do you mean, pot luck?" Mabel repeated, her greedy made-up eyes sweeping the little feast. "I never saw such a swell feed on this table before, and I've been eating here for quite some time! Beans and bread are what we usually get on Sunday night. Ain't that so, Beau?"

Then her glance went to John Nye's face. "Welcome, stranger!" she hailed him. "I'll tell you who [illegible] don't have sense [illegible] us down to each side—Mrs. Beaure-[illegible]! What's the [illegible] of you? Have you lost your tongues?"

CHAPTER XXIII

IT SEEMED to Sally, as she looked at little Mabel with startled blue eyes, that she really had never seen her until this moment.

Perhaps it was because she was seeing her now through John Nye's eyes—but somehow she never had seemed so over-dressed, so highly rouged, so loud-voiced, so—so vulgar before.

She stood in the doorway, swinging her beaded bag to and fro, rolling her eyes at John Nye, and talking to him as if she had known him all her life.

"You'll make room for me beside you, won't you, Big Shot?" she asked him pertly. "Even if they don't ask me and Beau to sit down and have a bite, you will, won't you?"

"Of course, I will," John answered good naturedly, and sprang up to place a chair for her beside his own.

The sudden movement seemed to bring Sally back to life. She had been frozen with surprise and a kind of dismay ever since the newly-married pair had burst open the door.

Now she jumped up and did all the things that she should have done three minutes before.

She kissed Mabel, smiled at Beau and told him to get some forks and napkins from the sideboard. She sent Ted Sloan into the kitchen to slice some more roast beef, and then she put her arm around Mabel and drew her out of the room.

"I know you want to come out into my room and put some powder on your nose, and so forth," she said to her, although Mabel's little nose was thickly covered with powder already.

"I want to talk to you for a second," she half-whispered to her as soon as they were in the narrow little hall that led to the bedrooms. "You and Beau have had something to drink, haven't you?"

Mabel wiggled her shoulders impatiently. "Well, suppose we did?" she asked in a cross tone. "Who has a better right, I'd like to know?— If you can't celebrate your own wedding, when are you supposed to celebrate?"

"Im sure I don't know. But please don't do any more celebrating while Mr. Nye is here," Sally begged her. "Millie wants her little supper to go off well, and it won't if Beau and Ted get to drinking."

Mabel's expression of annoyance deepened. "Well, for heaven's sake, you'd think Millie's Mr. Nye was more important than your own brother and his wife!" she said in a whisper that was as violent as a shout. "Here we are, back from our honeymoon, and all you do is hush us and tell us to behave ourselves because Millie's Mr. Nye is in the house—My stars! Who's he that we should forget we were just married twelve hours ago—"

"Hush, he'll hear you!" Sally fairly wrung her hands in agony. "Oh do be still, Mabel!"

But Mabel did not need to be told to be silent just then. She had paused in the doorway of Beau's room, and her eyes were like saucers as she stood there, spell-bound.

For Beau's room was no longer Beau's room.

It was Millie's, every inch of it. Beau's pennants and pipe-racks were gone from the walls. His reading lamp was gone from the head of the bed. His large framed photograph of Jack Dempsey in action no longer decorated the writing desk between the windows.

Nothing of his was visible in the room except his big black trunk, into which Millie had piled all of his belongings, helter-skelter, a few hours ago.

er pink dressing-gown lay over the chair beside the bed. Her imitation-ivory toilet articles lay on the dressing table. Her nightgown still lay on the floor, a pile of pink mull, where she had stepped out of it. Even the air had taken on the scent of the "Love Only Me" perfume that seemed like part of her, somehow; she had used so much of it for so long.

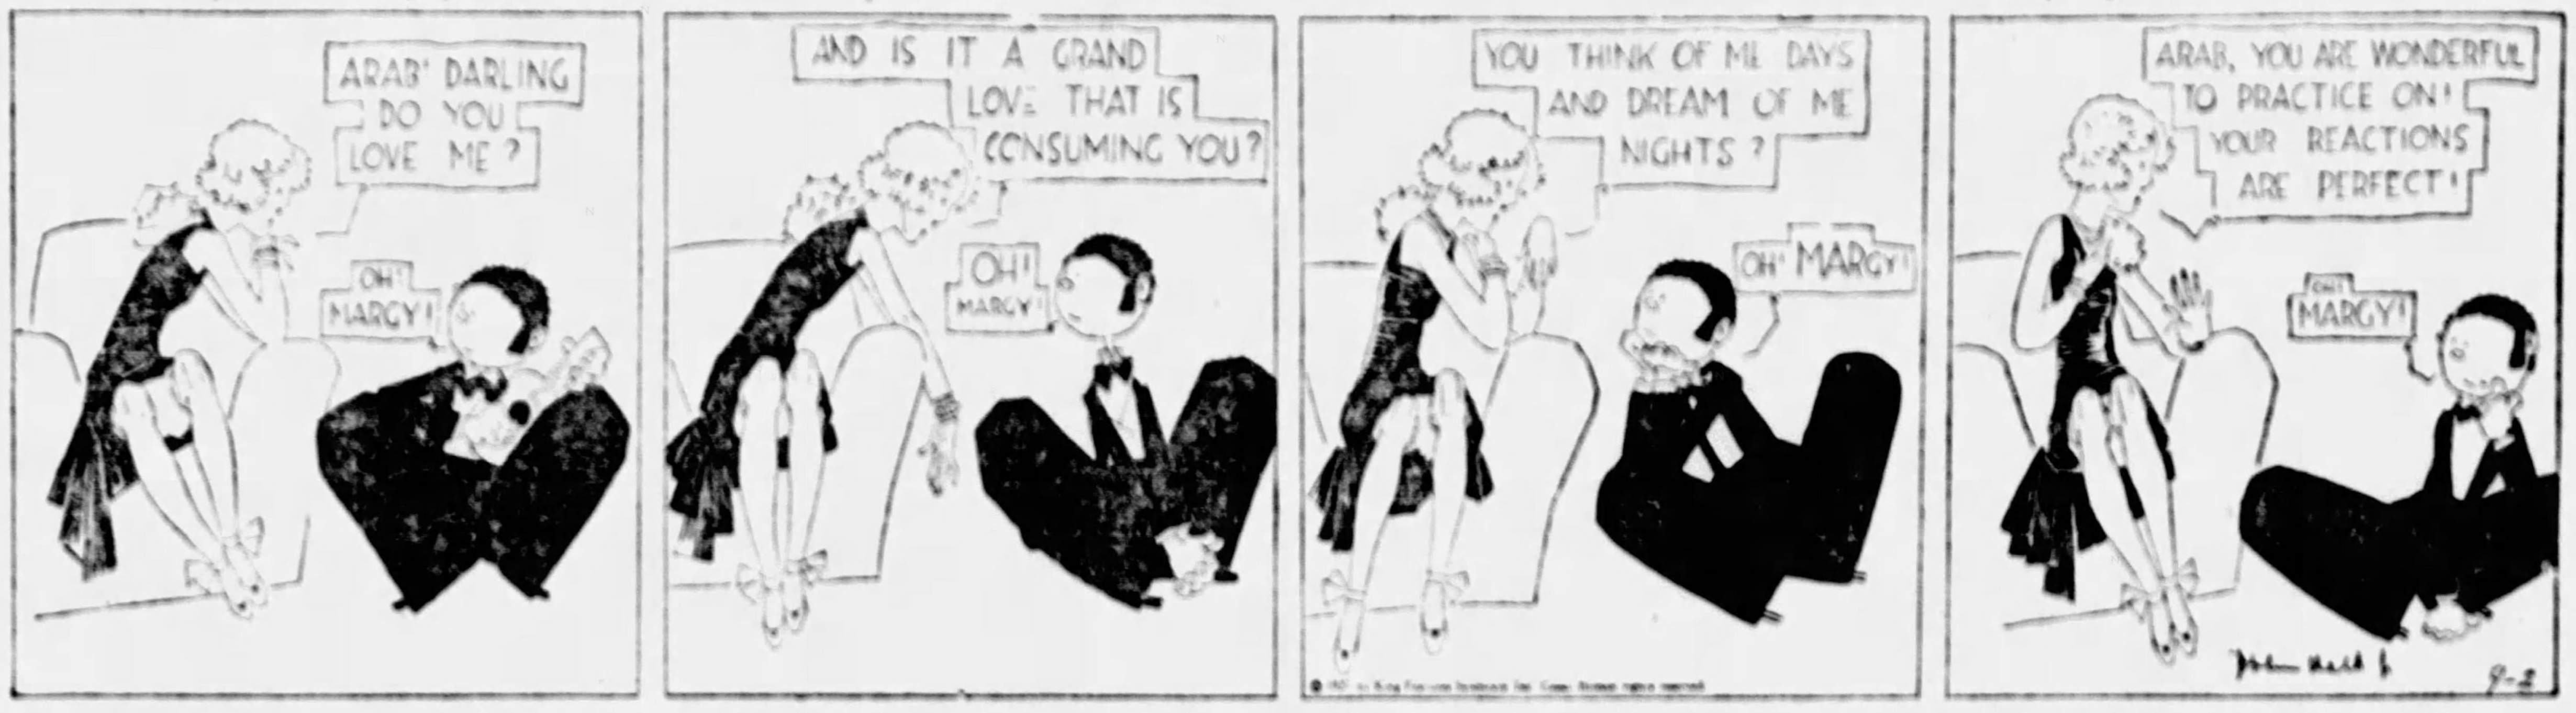
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.



ARAB' DARLING DO YOU LOVE ME?
OH! MARGY!
AND IS IT A GRAND LOVE THAT IS CONSUMING YOU?
OH! MARGY!
YOU THINK OF ME DAYS AND DREAM OF ME NIGHTS?
OH! MARGY!
ARAB, YOU ARE WONDERFUL TO PRACTICE ON! YOUR REACTIONS ARE PERFECT!
OH! MARGY!
John Held Jr

"My dear, I had the WILDest time with ARab the other night—just LOOSE, do you know what I mean? Because I honestly felt perfectly DEV'lish for some odd reason, and when I am feeling that way I simply aDORE to get the ARab THORoughly anNOYED, because he is ACtually the FUNniest sight you have ever beHELD when he is all hot and BOTHered about anything, my dear—you know the TYPE! Well, ANYways, I sort of preTENded to be in a terribly sentiMENtal and SLUSHy MOOD at this point, my dear, and he was actually TOO imPRESSED because I mean as you KNOW, my dear, he is ALways ready to PET at the drop of the HAT, and I mean he prob'ly thought he was in for an EVEning of light SMACKing—can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean you would honestly think he had known me LONG enough to realize that I am not that kind of a GIRL, unless I am with somebody who is terribly atTRACTIVE, I mean, because I honestly think that this CASural osculAtion just gives a girl a repuTAtion for making herself CHEAP, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, I actually had MORE darn FUN with the ARab because I mean he thought I was being ABs'lutely SErious when I began pretending to sort of asSURE myself of his unDYing afFEKtion, so when I told him he was a simply MARvelous subject to PRACtice on, he was practicably ready to ROLL over and BUTter himself with disMAY—can you BEAR it, my dear?"

Quicksands of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

DICKEY PREPARES TO HURL HIS FINAL BOLT AT MADGE,

FOR a tense second after I burst through the door of Dicky's office, crying out that I claimed nothing save the right to an explanation of the vague, horrible accusation he had just made, no one of the little group moved or spoke. Dicky was seated at the front of his desk, Edith at the side, so close to him that his head was resting on one of her arms. With her other hand she was stroking his hair tenderly as might a comforting mother, and though the movement of her hand stopped, she did not take it away, but stared at me defiantly.

Dicky did not even raise his head at first. When he did it was to look at me with an infinite weariness and contempt and say dully:

"Go away."

But I was beyond being wounded by contempt or roused by jealousy. His mention of Junior had fused all my emotions into one—that of defending myself for him.

For I realized that there was need of defense, quick and intelligent for me. All my theories had been overturned by Edith's murmur:

"Would it make it easier for you if you told me?"

Dicky's anger against me had not been based upon anything which Edith Fairfax had told him. I acquitted her wholly, all the more because as our leveled glances crossed, I saw that she gladly would welcome anything which would separate me from him. But her eyes were those of a lioness, not of a cobra.

I caught at the back of the nearest chair, held myself upright by it until I could get strength to answer Dicky's contemptuous direction.

"No, Dicky, I shall not go away until I have heard what this thing is of which you accuse me," I said at last. "I came here only by accident, to bring you this telegram which was brought to the house just now"—I tossed it to the table, and he let it lie unnoticed—"But I have overheard too much to let it pass."

Dicky struggled to his feet. I saw Edith's hand upon his sleeve trying to keep him back, guessed that she was trying to restrain his wrath in the fear that he would strike me, and, woman-like—hated her for the effort. The next instant he was standing in front of me, hands clenched into fists at his side, and his voice, low but raucous, beating upon my ears in angry, horrible words.

"You have heard too much to let it pass. You! Why, you treacherous devil from the pit, what if I tell you that I know what you have been doing? I found you out in time, thank God. And then you talk of letting things pass."

I stared at him in horror, wondering if he had gone out of his mind. It seemed to me that nothing else could explain his ravings. Then I threw out my hand peremptorily.

"You are either insane or something terrible is going on of which I know nothing," I said with the slow iciness which is the best answer to stormy wrath. "And you have said too much not to finish. The vilest criminal in the land is permitted to know the charge against him. I demand that you tell me what you mean."

"She is right, Dicky," Edith Fairfax struck in. "You must tell her—and hear her."

Dicky turned his face toward hers with the first hint of yielding. And I—gladly could have struck Edith across the mouth, it was intolerable that my chance to find out the horrible thing which Dicky was thinking should come because of this woman's pleading.

"All right," Dicky said abruptly, ignoring me. "I'll hear her, but alone. Go on home, Ede, and thank you for listening to my woes."

She put her hand upon his arm. I might not have been in the room.

"I want to hear nothing of this," she said. "But—I hate to leave you two here together in a mood like this. Promise me—"

"Oh! I'll neither kill her nor myself," Dicky said with a raucous, horrible laugh, "although I'd like to do both. Hurry up Ede, and get out of here. I want to get through with this job in a hurry."

MY KITCHEN NOTEBOOK

I've [illegible]asted [illegible] Fudge Than This

I don't often boast as proudly as this, but, really, fudge made by my recipe has a different body, a finer, creamier texture, a smoothness that you won't find ordinarily. I myself claim no credit for these results. I know that the explanation of these outstanding qualities lies in three things: cooking the fudge just to the soft ball stage and no longer, vigorous beating, and the use of Carnation Milk.

"But why," so many people ask, "should Carnation Milk give results different from those of ordinary milk?"

There's a very definite reason for this notable superiority. Carnation Milk is "homogenized"—that is, its cream content is broken up into tiniest particles and distributed uniformly all through the milk. As Carnation Milk is evaporated to double-richness, this means that every drop of milk has a double share of enriching cream. Not only that, but the greater fineness of the cream particles gives a smoother, finer texture to all cookery in which Carnation Milk is used.

You'll Like Carnation Better for All Cooking

As in making candies, so in all cookery—Carnation gives a richness, a smooth creaminess, a fine, fragile texture that even the best of bottled milk cannot equal. Try this better milk. Evaporated to double creaminess, "homogenized," and sterilized for safekeeping, it places at your disposal an exceptionally convenient supply of milk, and in the most dependable and economical form.

I have a whole Carnation Cook Book full of recipes, which I'd like to send you, that you may know this better way of cooking. Ask for "My Hundred Favorite Recipes." It's free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., 100 Carnation Bldg., Oconomowoc, Wis.

Carnation Pralines

1 cup brown sugar, 2 cups white sugar, 3 tbsp. corn syrup, 1½ cups nuts, ½ cup Carnation Milk diluted with ½ cup water, 1 tbsp. maple sugar or mapeline. Boil together all ingredients (except nuts and flavoring). When soft ball is formed in cold water, remove from fire, add flavoring, place pan in cold water, without shaking, until hand can be held against bottom of pan without discomfort; add nuts; beat with slotted wooden spoon; when stiff drop from spoon on buttered sheet.

Carnation Fudge

2 tbsp. butter, 2 squares bitter chocolate, 3 cups sugar, 2 tbsp. corn syrup, ½ cup Carnation Milk, diluted with ½ cup water, 1 tsp. vanilla.

Melt butter and shaved chocolate in sauce pan, add sugar, corn syrup and diluted Carnation. Cook until mixture forms a soft ball in cold water or reaches a temperature of 235° F., stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Remove from fire and add vanilla. When cool beat until creamy and mold on buttered plate.

The Smoothest Fudge!

BE sure to use Carnation Milk if you want smooth, fine-grained fudge. All things made with milk or cream are better in consistency and texture when creamy-smooth Carnation is allowed to help.

MRS. LOIS K. DODGE WEDS ARMY MAN IN HAWAII

ROMANCE WITH OFFICER ENDS IN WEDDING

HONOLULU, Sept. 2—(AP.)—Hawaii today furnished the setting for a romance in which Mrs. Lois Knowlton Dodge, divorced wife of Horace E. Dodge, scion of the wealthy Detroit automobile family, and Lieut. Benjamin Franklin Manning of the Army, began their honeymoon.

They were married here yesterday under the ritual of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the home of Kenneth Harlan, motion picture actor.

Manning is attached to the Coast Artillery at Fort Ruger, near Honolulu. This is his second marriage. His first wife was killed in an automobile accident last New Year's eve.

Mrs. Dodge obtained her final decree of divorce last May after Dodge made a spectacular race from Paris to Honolulu by airplane, steamer and automobile in an attempt to effect a reconciliation. Mr. and Mrs. Dodge returned to San Francisco, she going to Los Angeles and he to Detroit.

After the divorce Mrs. Dodge lived in Los Angeles until about two months ago, when she made a hurried trip to Honolulu. This took place immediately after the death here of Lieut. C. L. Williams, Army aviator, who perished when his plane dived into the sea. Rumors were circulated to the effect that Mrs. Dodge had been engaged to Lieut. Williams, but these were denied by their friends.

ELOPING WIFE DROPS "SHEIK"

By Universal Service.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Linda H. Bache, wife of John W. Bache, steel and iron merchant, who left her luxurious home in Plainfield to elope with Joseph C. Dever, traffic policeman, has gone back to Columbus, O., leaving Dever "flat."

Coming here as Mrs. Brown, the woman who gave up home and husband to run away with Plainfield's "Sheik" policeman, visited him in his cell, where he waits trial for abandoning his wife and four-month-old child.

Although this interview, the first meeting of Mrs. Bache and Dever since police parted them in Columbus, where she had a department store job, was private, her demeanor on leaving jail left no doubt she had broken with the policeman.

Mrs. Bache, following her brief talk with Dever, hurried to Plainfield, drew money from a bank and entrained for Columbus, bound, she told friends, to make her own living. Her husband has filed suit for divorce, naming Dever as co-respondent.

Dever in a statement previous to Mrs. Bache's visit said he loved her and looked forward to rejoining her

TEACHERS RAP CHICAGO MAYOR

A demand for a more affirmative display of patriotism and condemnation of the action of Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, in the dismissal of William McAndrew, superintendent of schools of that city, constituted the reaction of the 2,100 teachers attending the seventy-seventh annual session of the Allegheny County Teachers' Institute which closed at noon today.

Mayor Thompson and his political adherents were roundly scored by speakers at the institute. In the preamble to a resolution adopted this morning it was declared that "It is essential to free government that the public school system should at all times be kept free from political domination." There was not a dissenting voice when a vote was taken on the resolution placing the teachers of the county "on record as opposing the action of the Chicago Mayor." An outburst of applause followed the vote.

Dr. Earl Barnes, principal lecturer at the institute, declared that the charges of pro-British propaganda in text books used in Chicago schools was "a mere pretext in the fight to get rid of McAndrew, one of the best educators and conscientious school men in the country."

Although a state law provides that each public school must display the national flag, it was discovered today that the American emblem had been missing all week from the platform in Memorial Hall, where the institute sessions were held. As a result the teachers resolved to buy a flag staff and keep it for sessions in future years.

Only six vacancies in the teaching staff of the rural and suburban schools of the county were caused by death during the last 12 months, which is the lowest average in many years. Of those who died during the year two were victims of automobile accidents. They were Miss Elizabeth Elliott, teacher of art and penmanship in the Oakmont schools, who was killed, with several others, when their automobile was struck by a trolley car at Cambridge Springs, August 9, and Mrs. Marion Poppleton McSwaney, teacher in the Blawnox Junior High School, who was killed in a motor accident in November last at New Kensington.

Other teachers who died during the year were H. M. Merritt, former principal of the Ben Avon schools; Mrs. Anna W. Thomas, for 20 years a teacher in the Sharpsburg schools; Miss Helen K. Fleming, instructor in physical education, North Braddock, and Miss Isabel White, for 35 years a teacher in North Braddock and secretary-treasurer of the Allegheny county branch of the State Educational Association.

BLAST AND FIRE RAZE HOTEL

KANE, Pa., Sept. 2.—The Anderson Hotel at Johnsonburg, 16 miles southeast of here, was destroyed by an explosion and fire early today in what is believed to be the latest chapter in a bootleg war that has taken a toll of at least five lives in Johnsonburg in the last few years.

No one was injured in the hotel fire. At 2:45 a. m. an explosion rocked the town and shortly afterward flames were discovered issuing from the basement of the hostelry. When fire companies arrived on the scene they found the basement badly damaged by the blast, with flames making rapid headway in the lower portion of the building.

Giant Golden Eagle Shares Sky With Lindbergh

GREELEY, Colo., Sept. 2—(AP.)—A giant golden eagle, flying at a great height, shared the sky with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh yesterday as the "Lone Eagle" passed over this city en route to Pierre, S. D.

After Col. Lindbergh had circled the city in his "Spirit of St. Louis," and then continued his course to Scotts Bluff, Neb., sky gazers noticed above them what they believed to be another airplane or the return of the "Spirit of St. Louis." The object came closer to view and was identified as a golden eagle. The eagle, emulating Colonel Lindbergh and his famous plane, circled the city several times and departed from view.

THIEVES LOOT SYNAGOGUE

Two safes were opened and a box containing a small sum of money was taken from one by thieves who broke into the office of the Congregation Shaary Tefilla Synagogue, 23 Miller street, early today. Joseph Shugar, 43 Reed street, discovered the robbery.

MOTHERS OF 2 MEN, 1 DYING, 1 DEAD, SOUGHT

Mrs. Lizzie Hendershott, whose son James is reported dying from accident injuries at Columbus, O., and Mrs. Amanda Buchanan, whose son Edward is dead in Chicago, are being sought here by the Missing Persons Bureau.

LONGER DAY FOR JUDGES ADVOCATED BY CANUTI

Three-quarters of a million dollars could be saved yearly by the judges if they would increase their hours in court from six to seven hours, Frank F. Canuti, candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court, said in the James Street church, Wilkinsburg, last night. "We are told that Allegheny county needs more judges," Canuti said. "Fourteen judges would be sufficient if each of them would add an hour to his working day."

THIEVES CARRY AWAY PAY TELEPHONE BOX

Thieves tore down and carried away a pay telephone from a shanty at the outdoor Soho swimming pool, Soho and Kirkpatrick streets, early today. Boards were removed from the side entrance to the pool to gain access.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

ALTHOUGH the Blue Ridge [illegible] will go [illegible] all the afternoon to [illegible] Harris and John Miljus, [illegible] of the [illegible] were scattered about the stands in the big throng yesterday. And Harris certainly gave his buddies a rare treat by staging a field day. Joe's homer was one of the prettiest drives of the season in the Oakland lot. The smashing liner hit the centerfield fence on a short hop.

HARRIS and Miljus journeyed to the Moose Temple last night to mingle with their war-time comrades. The athletes are just about as popular as [illegible] and Gen. Brett, both of whom are idolized by the [illegible] fighters.

THE double play put over by Carlson and [illegible] on Meadows' bunt in the third inning was one of the best and [illegible] plays seen at Forbes Field in many a season. Leo Hartnett appeared to have a part in the last throw and Gooch was on first with none out when Meadows dumped a tap toward Carlson. Carlson and Hartnett worked perfectly on the [illegible] when they saw Gooch hustle back toward first. Carlson, instead of catching the ball on the fly, allowed it to [illegible]. Then he picked it up in a jiffy and threw to Grimm. The [illegible] put over a good trick in stepping away from the bag to catch the throw. That meant that Meadows was not yet out, but it meant also that Gooch was not entitled to the bag, he being in a forceout position by reason of the fact that Grimm did not touch the sack. Grimm put the ball on Gooch and then touched the bag, doubling Meadows. Great stuff, Lefty.

MEADOWS turned in his seventeenth victory of the season as he pitched the Pirates into first place. Carmen Hill is two up on Lee and probably will be the first pitcher of the club to reach a score of successes. Had it not been for two months of idleness, due to an injured knee, Remy Kremer might be right up with his two teammates.

BOB O'FARRELL seems to have Grover Alexander and Jess Haines primed for the two big battles on the Oakland lot, but Bush has two masters in Kremer and Hill. In the great series played about three weeks ago in St. Louis, Aleck and Haines scored two triumphs over Aldridge and Hill, the scores being 2 to 1 in each case. The Pirates won the last two games, the whole set standing out in the play of the season in the senior circuit. Aldridge and Hill were just as clever as the Redbird duo as they lost the two games referred to.

THE Waner boys tickled the large assemblage with two throws that figured deeply in the big success. With none out in the second, Lloyd cut down Hack Wilson who tried to sprint from first to third on Stephenson's single. In the third, Brother Paul made a fine throw to Gooch to stop Beck, who tried to score from second on a single.

THE boy wonder of the Cubs, Shortstop English, went into the important fracas with as much confidence and polish as a Wright or a Jackson. Instead of watching his elders to get the right idea on behavior, English was talking to the pitchers as they labored in pinches and in a general way conducted himself like a star.

Large Field Anticipated

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

ANNOUNCEMENT was made yesterday by John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the public links section, U. S. G. A., that the city championship would be played over the Schenley Park municipal links next week, beginning Tuesday. The qualifying round will be at 36 holes, and the remainder of the match play contests at 18 until the final is reached. The competition likely will be concluded by Saturday. A large field is anticipated.

The city championship is open to any amateur golfer residing within the city limits. That is to say, a man does not necessarily have to hold a permit at the Schenley course, and it makes no difference if he is affiliated with a private club if he wishes to participate.

Al McGirk, Schenley pro, with his able assistants will direct the tournament. Pat McDonough will defend his crown.

ever that our prospects are better than they were a year ago. The main reasons for this are that the team will be more experienced, which is a big item in football as well as in anything else, that we have some material of exceptional promise coming up from last year's freshman squad and that we are going to have quite the best lot of reserve strength that Pitt has had in a long time. We shall be able to replace a lost player in any position with a man almost as good as the regular."

THAT'S a whole lot for Dr. Sutherland to say and it speaks volumes to those who know the canny Scot as one coach who always hides his hopes or fears, his confidence or misgivings, under an impenetrable armor of reserve.

And Sutherland's conservative statement that Panther prospects are better than they were a year ago is borne out by a brief study of the situation.

An idea of Pitt's unusual strength this year and the quality as well as the quantity of her material may be gleaned from the raft of players who are eligible for the varsity and who will be taken to the training camp on Sunday.

There will be no fewer than 37 men in the squad, as follows: Backs—Gilbert Welch, Allen Booth, Tom Parkinson, James Hagan, Walter graph.)

Hoban, Dwight Pyock, Charles Edwards, Paul Fisher, John Davis, Octavius Uansa, Felix Wilps, Philip Goldberg and R. P. Bowen.

Ends—A. A. Guarino, Felix Dempsie, Joe Donchess, Edward Sherako, Thomas Heising and Philip Sargeant.

Linemen—Andrew Cutler, Chester Wasmuth, Andrew Salata, William Kern, John Roberts, Theodore Meier, Alex Fox, Ray Montgomery, Karl Klinger, A. J. Trapazzano, Richard Goldberg, E. W. Seifert, Michael Getto, Frank Mahoney, Nevin Faw, Jack Shaw, Chester Doverspike and A. L. Carson.

THE quality of this material has rarely been equaled since the memorable days of 1916, when the Panthers had what was probably the best team in the U. S. A. Not only are nearly all the regulars of 1926 retained, only Lynn and McMillan having been lost aside from Rooney and Demolia, but it will be recalled that last year's freshman team was one of the best yearling outfits that the university ever had, and it follows that in the boys coming up from that outfit to the varsity this year Coach Sutherland will have new timber far superior to the ordinary grade of incoming candidates.

In the backfield, the best bets are Welch, Hagan, Parkinson, Edwards, Booth, Fisher and Pyock. Hoban also showed flashes of good football last year and is a fast man. Uansa is a McKees Rocks boy who showed up fairly well on the freshman team in 1926. Bowen is a star track man, and the Panther coach is hopeful of developing him into a good football player as well.

AMONG the ends, the brightest prospects are Guarino, who was a sensation at receiving forward passes last year; Demoise, also a holdover of ability, and a new man in Donchess, from the freshman team of last fall, who has all the earmarks of a future star. Heising also is developing fast and is likely to show a lot of stuff. The last named is a Wilkinsburg High School lad.

In the line, Cutler has the inside track for the center position, with Richard Goldberg a mighty good substitute. Roberts is a regular guard holding over from last year, and the leading candidates for tackles are Kern, Wasmuth and Salata. Other good line prospects are Montgomery and Klinger from the 1926 freshman team, and Getto, who is much improved this fall.

It develops that Rooney and Demolia probably will be lost to the Panthers for this season only. After being declared ineligible last spring for scholastic deficiencies, both showed such eagerness to get back in good standing that they made arrangements to attend summer school. The university authorities ruled that they must make up a year's work the coming term, and both are determined to buckle down to their studies so earnestly that they hope to be eligible for the varsity team again in 1928.

(The views of Coach Jock Sutherland on the season's prospects at Pitt will be given in a continuation of this article to be published in tomorrow's issue of the Sun-Tele-bet on a certain horse, the smaller the odds because the division of the "pool" is made on the basis of tickets sold. If the "pool" is $100,000 and only 10 tickets are sold, then each holder gets one-tenth. But, if 100 tickets are sold, then each ticket holder gets only one-hundredth—and so on.

The explanation of the pari-mutuel officials sounds logical—but it isn't. For they would have the player believe that the last minute plunge is ALMOST ALWAYS on the ultimate winner. Race track history disproves this. It shows that the last-minute plunge is made four times as often on the horses that LOSE than it is on the horse that WINS.

Yet, the payoff odds on the pari-mutuel tracks and the statement of the officials would have the player believe that the last minute plunge is usually on the winner.

The officials concede that there are times when the last-minute play is made on losing horses. But rarely do the payoff odds, as checked with the aproximate odds, reflect this. For, if the last-minute play is on losing horses, then it follows that the payoff on the winner should be greater than the approximate posting. But generally, when payoff time comes it will be seen that if the payoff on the winner is not smaller than anticipated through the aproximate odds, it rarely is greater. And that is infinitely mystifying, isn't it?

SYSTEM IS MYSTERIOUS

In fact, the entire pari-mutuel system in America is mysterious—and sinister. Beyond a few states, there is no legal control over the amount of the "take"—and no complete official safeguard anywhere against theft of a colossal kind. The hundreds of millions which the American racing public pours into the temporary treasuries of pari-mutuel race tracks are practically at the mercy of any thieves who might be hirelings in one way or another.

"But what of it?" quoth one racing official. "I'll grant that something ought to be done—but who is going to do it? I'll concede the possibility that millions are stolen from the players through unsold or false entries. But what of it? The mutuel race track horse player knows he's tossing his money into veiled mutuels. He knows there is nothing to protect him from dishonesty and theft. He knows the risk he runs. But still he plays, doesn't he?

"No one forces any man to bet on the horses. If he wants to do it and wants to take his chances on being fleeced, that's his own affair, isn't it?

"Only a sucker will play the races. And only the most terrible sucker will try to beat the races at a pari-mutuel track. The best he can get there is the worst of it—and he knows it at the beginning. Yet he will continue to play. But suckers are strange people; they aren't happy unless they are getting trimmed and so they make the pari-mutuel race tracks their mecca, because there the trimming is done by experts."

ing the boundary of the field and catch the ball."

Where ground rules are in effect, with part of the crowd roped off, "that rope becomes the boundary line of the playing field," the chief executive points out, adding:

"In general, a ball hit into a crowd beyond the rope becomes automatically a two-base or three-base hit, as may be determined by the special ground rules made prior to the game."

"In all cases where a fielder reaches over a fence, railing or rope, he does so at his own risk and no interference should be called," Mr. Heydler rules. "Should a spectator, however, reach out on the playing field and plainly prevent the fielder from catching the ball, then the batsman should be called out for the spectator's interference. In all cases where a spectator goes on the playing field, picks up a fair-hit ball and retains possession of it, two bases will be allowed."

U. S.-English Polo Match Postponed To September 10

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The first of the international polo matches between the English and United States fours, scheduled for Monday of next week, has been postponed until Saturday, September 10, the United States Polo Association announced here last night.

The postponement was decided upon, the Polo Association's announcement stated, when the captains of the two rival teams and others concerned decided that the Meadowbrook course, on which the matches are to be played, would not be in condition for competition by Monday no matter what the weather conditions between now and the 5th, the original date of the first match. The recent heavy rains have water-logged the course.

Eddie Anderson's Wife May Enjoin Fight Carded Tonight

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A family quarrel has threatened to postpone the fight between Tony Canzoneri of Chicago and Eddie Anderson, the Wyoming cowboy, set for tonight.

Mrs. Anderson yesterday filed suit for separate maintenance against the Wyoming fighter and later declared she would attempt to enjoin tonight's fight unless satisfactory arrangements are made. Both Canzoneri and Anderson are leading contenders for the featherweight crown, now vacant.

PANTHERS' PROSPECTS BRIGHT

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER, veteran pitcher with the Cardinals, who deserves to be ranked with pitching immortals like Johnson and Mathewson, besides owning a great pitching record, is one of the most popular men in the game among players and fans. Through all the huzzahs accruing from his splendid work on the mound, Alex always has been a "regular fellow." Fame never spoiled him.

Havey J. Boyle.

Such comment is hardly news, but it is aroused here by receipt of a letter from a "father" anxious to pay Alexander a compliment through this column.

One time the correspondent's son was anxious to meet Alexander. The boy comes from a small tri-state district town. A letter was written to Alex, who promptly replied to the kid in the out-of-the-way village.

THE boy visited Forbes Field just to see Alex and sent a note to Alex on the field saying he would like to shake hands with him. Alexander was prompt to grant the wish and made the kid one of the happiest in the land by telling him all about big-league pitching and baseball in general.

It made such a big impression with the boy and added to the happiness of the father.

The great Alexander was punished by the Cubs, and perhaps with some he lost caste. But whatever his failings were as a Cub, his modesty in his baseball greatness and his thoughtfulness for the kids still leave baseball his debtor.

It is due to the thoughtful Alexanders of the game that baseball thrives and flourishes.

ALEXANDER'S faults, emphasized because they made news of an unusual nature, are seen in their true perspective only when you realize that his good points far outweigh any of the weaknesses that the flesh is heir to.

Of late, we have found it a little difficult to be sentimental, influenced, we suppose, by the non-sentimentalists in the kind of literature that we dally with; but an old impression of Alex, gained from a close-range observation, was strengthened to the point of eulogizing the big pitcher when the thankful letter came in.

ANOTHER letter asks assistance in finding a collie dog. A young lady from Edgewood is the loser. A light brown, with white collar and white feet, is the description. We are referring, of course, to the collie. This should be unnecessary to state, but eagle-eyed reporters, looking for ambiguity, would purposely misinterpret this unless the explanation was offered.

If you find the dog send it in. However, this does not mean that all dogs are to be suspect. There might be considerable objection around here to a roundup of all dogs that seem to be lost.

Just why our aid has been asked in this is not clear, although we are glad to help out in this case. We show broad-mindedness in trying to find a collie. Once, one of the breed bit us in the pants. Of 8,000 persons handy, and to our mind, far more delicious, this collie picked us out as the tone to bite. Fortunately or unfortunately, according to the viewpoint, the bite was not fatal.

A distinguished medical man in a recent conversation wondered why professional baseball pays such little attention to the health, mental and physical, of the high-priced athletes on the big league rosters.

IT WAS his idea that many a pennant has been lost because baseball owners were not firm enough in sending their players to the right sort of medical men. Ball players, he observed, get whims and fancies about ailments, and attempt, often, to prescribe for themselves, when as a matter of fact they should have nothing to say about the matter.

Of course, most of the clubs have good physicians, but what our friend meant was that when say, the Pirates are on the road they take up with any authority they fancy on the road.

On the basis that a big league club often wins a pennant through good luck in escaping long-term injuries to their stars, the physician opined that some day he expected to see the big league moguls arrange a staff of medical, surgical and expert masseurs, and that players would be attended by them and them only during the playing season.

The physician in question, we hasten to add, had only an impersonal interest, if any, in the matter. He was looking at it from the standpoint of a medical baseball fan rather than from just a medical standpoint. In other words, as a fan he believes pennant chances would be enhanced with better care taken of the men.

We pass the suggestion along, doubting whether anything will come of it. Baseball men are slow to establish new ideas.

HERE is startling news from a letter writer who says he has heard from a friend that the Giants are supposed to win this season. This upsets the other idea that the Cubs were supposed to win because of a new grandstand built in Chicago. The newest idea is more subtle than the old Chicago story. The newest story is that a certain umpire is the fellow in the new plot. Now the strange part of this is that the umpire in question as a matter of fact has a little feud on with the club in question. He would not bend either way, he is so good and meticulous, but if tempted to bend any way it would be away from and not toward the Giants' favor.

EX-BUCCO TO FACE FORMER MATES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Maranville arrived in town today with the Cards from Rochester, N. Y., where he was signed last night by Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals. The Cards played an exhibition game yesterday at Rochester, winning 8 to 1, and arranged the deal after the contest. A touch of the dramatic was lent to the occasion when it was necessary to hunt up the Rabbit in a moving picture theater and have him hurry to catch the Cardinals' train.

Maranville formerly was shortstop and second baseman of the Pirates, playing a phenomenal game at the latter position after being shifted out of a position in which he had become famous. He was traded to the Cubs after the 1924 season, along with Wilbur Cooper and Lefty Grimm, for Pitcher Vic Aldridge, Infielder George Grantham and First Baseman Al Niehaus. He later became manager of the Cubs, but was deposed and waived to the Brooklyn Club. He was given his unconditional release by the Dodgers last year and signed with Rochester, which then was managed by George Stallings, under whom Maranville had played with the Miracle Boston Braves in 1914.

Pirate players who encountered Maranville in Oakland this morning remarked on their former teammate's splendid physical condition.

The deal for Maranville involved cash and an agreement whereby Kapl, a player of the Syracuse club, the Cards' International League farm, will be turned over to Rochester.

The Rabbit has been the star of the Rochester club this season. He is batting 316. The club is managed by George Mogridge, former major league pitcher.

Ray Kremer will be Manager Donie Bush's pitching choice against the world champions this afternoon. He will be opposed by Grover Cleveland Alexander, the grand old pitching vet.

The clash of the afternoon will be enlivened by the appearance and activities of the Eightieth Division boys, who will be out to do special honor to two of their buddies—Joe Harris and John Miljus. The two Blue Ridge fighters are playing prominent parts in the present drive of the Pirates.

Accompanying Alexander were several of his mates, including Manager O'Farrell and Outfielder Ray Blades, who was struck in the head with a pitched ball in the last battle in Brooklyn. Blades shows a big lump on the back of his head, but he is in good shape otherwise.

PITT ON HER WAY BACK TO PEAK THIS YEAR

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

It Looks Like a Big Season for Locals—Even Coach Sutherland Admits Outlook Is Better Than In 1926—Stronger in Experience, New Material and Replacements.

(Note—This is the third of a series of articles on the prospects of the local college football teams based on interviews with the coaches. Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University have been previously dealt with. This installment is in two parts, and will be concluded tomorrow.)

FROM present indications the University of Pittsburgh is on her way back to the football peak. It looks like a big year for the Blue and Gold on the gridiron, with a hungry Panther running wild again and spreading terror from week to week among old and new opponents.

That conclusion is forced regardless of the angle from which you size up the situation or the prospects at this time, two days before the scheduled departure of the squad for Camp Hamilton at Windber, to put in 11 days of practice under the watchful eyes of Coach Jock Sutherland and his staff of assistants. The old regulars are better by reason of an additional year of experience, the incoming talent from the freshman team of last season is the best in a long time, the squad will have such powerful reserve strength and so rich in replacement material that its second team would be almost good enough to represent the average college with credit, and in a general sense the outlook that stretches ahead of the Sutherland machine is the most roseate in several years.

AS a result, there is an air of confidence at Pitt that extends from the prospective freshmen who are to enter school this month to the oldest alumnus. Even Coach Sutherland himself, one of the most conservative and least talkative of the country's leading coaches when it comes to discussing himself or his team's future, is clearly more confident than usual as he faces the 1927 season and looks at the cards he holds in his football hand.

"It would be folly for any coach to go so far as to predict a completely successful or perfect season," said the Pitt coach in discussing the outlook for this fall. "That would be taking altogether too much for granted in a sport that is very uncertain and in which no man can tell what is going to happen. Besides, it would be harmful if our players were to make the mistake of forming any such impression. It would tend to make them overconfident and perhaps cause disaster by giving them the erroneous notion that they were sure winners over any particular opponent.

"I do not hesitate to say, how-

Ho, Hum! Clements Again Seeks Injunction

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A petition for an injunction to stop the proposed Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship fight here September 22 was filed today by attorneys for William Clements, president of the Chicago Coliseum Club, which once held Dempsey's contract to fight Harry Wills.

GENE GETS WELCOME IN CHI

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The report given credence in some quarters that Gene Tunney is not a popular world's heavyweight champion got a rousing denial here today when, like a conquering hero, he swept into one of Chicago's greatest demonstrations.

Thousands of cheering men, women and children crowded the rail station and the streets for blocks about it when Tunney came in on the Twentieth Century Limited from his training camp at Speculator, N. Y., to complete his conditioning for his return match with Jack Dempsey here September 22.

A brass band whooped up things which needed no whooping and a squad of Marines lent an air of formality, hastily lost, to the station reception.

Tunney's smile beamed its broadest as he led his party of 20 from a special car. He was happy and carefree as he waved and shouted greetings to friends he recognized.

GIVEN KEY TO CITY

Tex Rickard, "manager" of the forthcoming setto for George Getz, the "promoter," managed to get a position alongside the champion and they fought their way through the throng to a string of automobiles waiting to them the champion and the welcoming committee on a ride through packed streets to the City Hall, where Mayor William Hale Thompson waited to welcome him to Chicago and hand him the traditional key to the city.

A dozen snorting motorcycles with policemen clearing the way with shrieking sirens headed the procession.

As the parade passed the Board of Trade at the foot of La Salle street and headed into the financial district showers of ticker tape, torn newspapers and pages from telephone books began to shower through the air. The windows of skyscrapers were filled with cheering, waving business leaders, clerks and stenographers. It was like a Lindbergh reception.

At the city hall the champion was herded through jammed corridors into the city council chamber, where he was posed with virtually every important personage connected with the municipal government and numerous business leaders. It was remarked that a policeman and two porters stationed at the entrance failed to be "shot" alongside Tunney, and that nobody else did.

MAKES BRIEF SPEECH

Hundreds of welcomers were banked in the gallery and shouted incessantly. Demands for a speech mingled with the hurrahs, and finally Gene mounted the rostrum and said "hello" and a few other words that virtually were lost in the din.

The champion seemed to have thanked the throng for its reception, but his words were just about lost in the noise.

"I am not going to fight here September 22," Tunney said after he had thanked Chicago for its reception. "In fact, I am opposed to fighting. I am going to engage in a boxing contest."

From the council chamber Tunney was taken to Mayor Thompson's executive suite.

STARTS WORK TOMORROW

After the handshaking ceremonies at the City Hall, Tunney motored to the Congress Hotel for a conference with Rickard.

The champion planned to leave later in the afternoon for his camp at Cedar Crest Country Club, 35 miles northwest, and spend the night there.

He intended to start training tomorrow, but probably do nothing more than some light limbering-up exercises and a little road work.

Is Dempsey Training For Golf Match Or a Fight?

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—William Harrison Dempsey has the hoi polloi around here all befuddled.

It can't make up its mind whether he's training for a fist fight or a golf tournament.

It reads what Tex Rickard has to say—and concludes that Dempsey is here for the purpose of doing some elaborate fistic training for the purpose of trading smites with Gene Tunney.

And then it reads that "Dempsey goes golfing again" and it reads his discourses and his treatises on the art of swinging a brassie and wielding a niblick.

Up to the present moment, Dempsey has put in more actual time golfing than he has at the less noble and more degrading pastime of swatting sparring mates.

FLY BALL RULE CLARIFIED

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Baseball fielders "cannot jump over any fence, railing or rope, marking the limits of the playing field in order to catch the ball," according to new rules constructions issued by John A. Heydler, president of the National League, to his umpires and made public yesterday.

In connection with Rule 48, which limits a home run to any fair hit going into stands at least 250 feet from the plate, President Heydler rules that the fielder may "(1) reach over such fence, railing or rope to make a catch; (2) fall over the same after having completed the catch; or (3) jump on top of a railing mark-

THEY BEAT THE CUBS

The Pirates went into first place by defeating the Cubs in their crucial single game at Forbes Field yesterday. Above are two of the important plays of the occasion. At the top, Joe Harris, who will be honored, along with John Miljus, by their Eightieth Division buddies today, is seen scoring after hitting his home run to the center field fence to start the home half of the fourth inning. Below, Beck is out at the plate on Paul Waner's throw as the Cub tried to score from second base on English's single to right in the third inning. The final score was 4 to 3, so that if Beck had tallied extra innings would have been required and but for Harris' home run the same situation would have resulted.

THE SUCKER GAME

An Expose' of the Pari-Mutuel System, demonstrating that you can't beat the races

by FRANK G. MENKE

(Editor's Note—This, the fourth and last of a series of articles by Frank G. Menke, which deal with the pari-mutuel race track wagering, and which point out how utterly impossible it is for the vast army of horse players to beat the races by wagering through the "machines.")

ONE of the strangest features of the pari-mutuel payoff in this country, is that the "payoff" on winning horses is almost always smaller than the approximate odds posted by the racing officials. And this fact has caused players from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Gulf to the Canadian border to vehemently insist:

"They've robbed us again."

Prior to the running of each race, the calculators make about three trips from one seller to another and record his sales up to that moment. Then they make a rough calculation of the approximate odds that each horse will pay in the event of victory and those odds are posted on the "approximate odds" board.

Again and again—10,500 times again—the official payoff on the winning horse has been far smaller than the approximate odds. There have been instances where the approximate odds have been 20 to 1 and when the official payoff odds have been flashed, the players holding winning tickets have found that they would get only 6 to 1 or 8 to 1—or perhaps less.

What's the explanation of the pari-mutuel officials for this vast difference—AGAINST THE PLAYER—between the aproximate odds and the exact payoff odds.

"Ah," the officials always will say, "that was due to the heavy last-minute play on the winner."

In pari-mutuel wagering, it may be explained, the more money there is

TEX FIRES TICKET MEN TO AVOID SCANDAL

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Tex Rickard today announced the discharge from the Dempsey-Tunney ticket office of several ticket sellers. Irregularities said to have involved the asking of bonuses for choice seats at the forthcoming heavyweight title fight were given as the reason for the action.

The promoter took the action, it was explained, to forestall any sort of ticket scandal.

DE MARCO TOPS MELLOW; KAYO SETS RECORD

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

THE shortest fight ever fought in this section featured the boxing show staged by Jules Beck in the Duquesne Steel Works baseball park last night. It was over in just about nothing flat, although the official announcer gave out the time as six seconds.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, 147½ pounds, and Charley Nixon, a Negro lad from Scranton scaling 146 pounds, were the principals, and it was the first bout on the program. The bell rang for the first round, the rivals rushed from the corners and Belmont shot out both fists as they collided in mid-ring. His left wrist struck Nixon high on the side of the head and his right fist followed through to the face and Nixon, who hadn't even been able to get his hands up, fell backward heavily to the floor of the ring, snoring before he struck a resting place. He was out cold and after the count had to be carried to his corner, where many minutes of valiant work with smelling salts and other resuscitatory methods were necessary to revive him. He still was woozy when he left the ring.

The actual fight, not including the formal count-out, lasted less than one second. If this is not a world's record, it ought to be. Nixon substituted for Tommy Ward, of the South Side, who could not pass the physical examination because of boils. The knockout victory was the second quick one in a row for Belmont, who stopped his opponent early in the first show at Duquesne, recently.

DeMARCO IS WINNER

Cuddy DeMarco, of McKeesport, and Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, met in their long-awaited return match in the 10-round main event and DeMarco carried off a merited but badly booed referee's decision at the finish. Judge Jock Simco voted for Cuddy and Judge Jim McLaughlin, of Braddock, for a draw. Referee Eddie Kennedy's vote for DeMarco then decided the thing. The judges also split at the end of the pair's battle at McKeesport, winter before last, and on that occasion Referee Red Robinson put the bout into the official records as a draw.

Last night's windup was exciting only in spots. DeMarco, in the main, fought his usual fight against a good hitter, stabbing with his left and then closing in and tying up his man. In a few of the latter rounds he stood toe-to-toe and slugged it out with his opponent and had the better

ADDITIONAL SPORTING NEWS

DAMON RUNYON SAYS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Mr. Jack Dempsey managed to achieve some measure of popularity after years of effort, but I judge from the tales from Chicago that Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn, his manager pro tem, is pursuing tactics not exactly calculated to enhance that popularity, if, indeed, he does not succeed in destroying it entirely.

DAMON RUNYON.

It seems that Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn is holding Mr. Dempsey incommunicado, so to speak, and maintaining an atmosphere of secrecy around Mr. Dempsey's training premises that is most irritating to some persons, and is rather a novel procedure when you consider that Mr. Dempsey is an important party to an enterprise that will remove a large amount of money from the public.

PERSONALLY I would not give two whoops to view Mr. Dempsey at his training, but it seems there are many citizens who are interested in that process, and who feel that they have some rights in the matter which are being ignored by Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn. However perhaps Mr. Flynn is aware of certain reasons why it is not well for Mr. Dempsey to be exposed too much to the public peeking, on which theory Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn must be given credit for some astuteness instead of being panned for officiousness.

I note one statement in the public prints that would indicate that Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn is proceeding with Mr. Dempsey's training on a sound basis. It is that Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn has Mr. Dempsey back at his weaving style instead of boxing flat-footed as he did when preparing for the fight with the terrible Sharkey man.

IF MR. DEMPSEY goes out flat-footed at Mr. Tunney, the Dempsey noggin will be jabbed to a kelly in even less time than the lightning calculators figure it will be so jabbed, however Mr. Dempsey comes out. A flat-footed style is no style to beat Mr. Tunney, who has as neat a left spear as you could hope to see.

Mr. Dempsey's only hope is to be able to weave and bob, and the legs he showed in his battle with the terrible Sharkey man will have to improve about 100 per cent if he is to keep weaving and bobbing and to be candid, Mr. Dempsey's legs were awful in the fight with the terrible Sharkey man.

If the terrible Sharkey man had the boxing brains of a flea, he would have bounced around for about 10 rounds, and Mr. Dempsey's legs would have folded up under him like an opera hat.

MR. DEMPSEY'S legs were showing distinct signs of decay from the opening bell, and they were wobbling precariously at the finish of the struggle.

It is possible that Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn may discover some way of reinforcing Mr. Dempsey's legs between now and September 22, in which event Mr. Tunney may have a fight on his hands. I would suggest splints to Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn. I know of no other way to stiffen up these legs with a few bad half inches here and there in them.

MR. DEMPSEY'S body and head and spirit are 32 years old, but his legs are 60 odd. I doubt if even Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn can syringe the spring of youth into them in the comparatively short time he has to prepare Mr. Dempsey's legs for the tussle with Mr. Tunney.

If he can I will admit that Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn is as great a conditioner as he is a golf player, which will rate him very high indeed. I note that Mr. Flynn frequently takes Mr. Dempsey out golfing, and this may be part of Dempsey's legs.

AND then again Mr. Dempsey's bank roll is pretty fat right now, and it may be that Mr. Flynn has discovered that Mr. Dempsey is not averse to wagering a few coconnuts per hole on his golf, in which event Mr. Flynn will do very well for the Flynn exchequer by the time the training siege is over.

Kidding to one side, as Mr. Ring Lardner says, the general opinion among the eastern ringworms seems to be that Mr. Tunney ought to be a 1-to-10 shot over Mr. Dempsey. The result of the meeting in Chicago seems to be such a foregone conclusion as far as the ringworms are concerned that the wonder is the affair is drawing the gate it is. Perhaps it is because of the interest in the West, where they are not jerry to Mr. Dempsey's legs.

THE easterners have no confidence whatever in those legs. They will be listening in on the reports from Soldiers' Field on the night of September 22, and any loud detonation therefrom will be followed by the general remark here:

"There goes those legs!"

of the exchanges. DeMarco won six of the 10 rounds, but some of them only by slight shades, and he turned the crowd against himself by his dilatory tactics. Mellow carried only the fourth and sixth rounds, with the fifth and eighth even. The best fighting was done in the last two rounds and the latter part of the seventh session, in which Cuddy had Mellow wobbly at the bell.

Mellow, a flat-nosed boxer, is strictly a counter puncher, and DeMarco was watching his right hand all the time, for it had dropped him in their previous meeting and he was taking no more chances of [illegible] with the Mellow [illegible] with it only once. That was in the sixth round and he had Cuddy on the run for a time.

DeMarco failed to appear at weighing time and lost his $100 forfeit. His weight was estimated at 131½ pounds and Mellow's as 137. James (Red) Mason, DeMarco's manager, was in New York and Eugene Williams of McKeesport acted as the [illegible] chief second.

YOUNG AND RUDY COP

Frankie Moran, South Italian of Homewood, substituted for Ralph Martin of Bloomfield when it was said [illegible] out against Bobby Young of [illegible] in the second bout and lost by a technical knockout in the sixth round. Referee Kennedy stopping the battle after Moran went down for a count of nine and then was floored again. Moran also was down in the fifth round and was all but out at the bell ending this round. It was a slugfest all the way with Young out in front. Bobby earned the displeasure of the fans by his wrestling tactics and was booed at the finish. He weighed 116½ pounds and Moran 114.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, 1[illegible] pounds, outboxed and outfought Teddy Welch, at McKeesport, in all but the fifth round of their six-round semi-final and easily earned the award of the judges. Welch kept on the move and did little mixing in the early rounds.

A good-sized crowd witnessed the show, which had been postponed from last Monday night because of bad weather.

Sixteen bouts to determine the regimental champions for the year will be staged by the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery in the large drill yard of the Oakland armory tonight. The public is invited to attend and a special invitation has been issued to the members of the Eightieth Division now in session here. In the event of rain the bouts will be moved indoors. The show is scheduled to get under way at 8 o'clock. Andy Slahuta and Monte [illegible] will meet in a special exhibition bout.

Tommy Crowley, South Side junior lightweight, boxes Reddy Blanchard of St. Paul in one of three 10-round bouts at Akron tonight. Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion, meets Tommy Hughes of Cleveland in another and K. O. Kelly and Jack Blackburn, Negro welterweights will meet.

SOCCER

by TOM BIRKS

WITH the season's opening games booked for one week from tomorrow, managers in the district are keenly interested in the condition of their proteges at this stage of the game. It is essential in soccer that clubs get away to a good start in the league race, and condition means everything.

A poor start spells ruination to a club's chances, for usually a league is won by clubs having no more than two defeats. Should these come early in the season, it is disastrous.

The Mustard Hollow outfit in the American League is not going to be a setup from the class of talent already signed. With some of the Italian star players in the fold, the management might surprise some of the skeptics regarding the teams chances.

Manager Balarini of Heidelberg is requested to call the writer at Grant 4100 this evening.

Secretary Sam Parks of the local governing body feels that this is going to be a wonderful season. Sam takes his cue from the sale of the contract blanks.

President Carson and Secretary Parks attended the meeting of the referees at the Henry last Saturday. Carson again has stated the knights of the whistle will receive the support of the governing body.

The following players for the Church League stars are requested to report: Simpson, from Avalon Presbyterian; Schaub, Metzler, Christ from K. of C. team; Eaton, Marshall, Van Horn, from Bellevue Christian team, and Mooney, Hunter, Yost, McKissock, Yont, and Jones from the Bellevue U. P. team. These players are to report at 5:15 p. m.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—The progress of many stocks to higher levels continued without interruption during the day's trading on the Curb exchange, although some of the issues that had previously moved to record-breaking levels reacted as the result of profit taking on a fairly large scale. Nearly all the stocks in which there was active trading made advances ranging from 1 to around 10 points and there was the same bullish tone shown in the bond market, where trading was on a large scale with offerings around current quotations.

The [illegible] bonds were prominent in that group, being in demand from several sources and making substantial gains.

Johns-Manville was again prominent in the high priced industrials, advancing 1 point. Singer Manufacturing, which was strong yesterday, made a further gain of 3 points and new high records were made in a number of the chain stores.

Arkansas new stock was one of the record breakers, moving up 2 points to above 30. [illegible] about 2 points, making a new high record above 48. [illegible], which was ex 40 per cent stock dividend, was traded in during the day at 86⅞ to 91, showing a net gain of over a point. Royal Baking Powder was in supply and eased 4 points to 236 and was then [illegible].

The most important factor of the petroleum group was the renewed strength of Standard Oil of Indiana which made a new high record on an advance of over a point to 75⅜. The action of this stock was regarded in the street as further confirmation of reports that the company is attempting to acquire the shares of Pan-American Eastern. Imperial Oil of Canada was another strong issue in the oil group moving up over 1 point to above 55. United Gas Improvement, Electric Bond and Share and American Gas and Electric were strong in the utility group.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Bond prices were fractionally irregular today, with evidences of week-end profit-taking cropping out in numerous issues which have been gradually moving forward. Trading again was in small volume and fairly well scattered over the list. Money conditions showed little change, so that resulting reactions were quite small in almost every instance.

High-grade mortgages attracted moderate attention. Western Pacific first 5s selling in fair amounts around par, slightly above yesterday's closing figure, and nominal offerings of Hudson Coal 5s were promptly absorbed. Among the convertibles, Erie D 4s gained nearly a point during the early hours. These bonds lose their convertible feature on October 1.

Cities Service Power 6s, which have been strong for a week or so, were offered freely, but the price held up well around 101⅞, the year's high.

One or two French bonds continued to gain ground, especially Rhinelbe 7s carrying stock warrants, which jumped 1½ points on a small amount of business. City of Rome 6½s were fractionally higher.

United States Government obligations were unusually quiet.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, [illegible] United States bonds in dollars and thirty seconds of dollars:

Recent Leaders Quiet In Local Market

Trading was on a light scale again today on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, and the recent market leaders which contributed to the larger business of two weeks or so ago remained quiet as they have been most of the week. Attainment of the 50 level by Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt seems to have taken the wind out of that issue as a trading vehicle for the time being, while Lone Star Gas has been very dull, although firm, around 48 since early in the week. Arkansas Gas came out in the early dealings today at 9⅝, practically unchanged, but only two lots of 100 shares each were handled at this figure. The miscellaneous list contributed very little to the business of the first half of the session. One small block of Pittsburgh Brewing preferred was handled at 9⅞, off a small fraction.

Scarcity of Blaw Knox common was reflected in that issue in today's market when bids for odd lots of the stock were obliged to go four points above the last previous sale to bring out an offer. One lot of 24 shares sold at 79, up four points from the preceding sale, recorded about three weeks ago. The sale at 79 was followed later by a 10-share transaction at 80, equal to the highest price on record for the stock.

A fair market developed for Lone Star Gas as the session progressed, the stock selling up to 49 as against 48½ on the opening.

MARKET RISES DESPITE BIG SALES

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Stock prices continued to move forward today despite rather heavy week-end realizing sales and a renewal of selling pressure against some of the oils. Bullish enthusiasm was maintained by reports of new alignments in the industrial and railroad fields and the continued ease of money rates.

Banks called nearly $20,000,000 in loans to prepare for the heavy week-end demands for currency, but call money ruled steady at 3½ per cent. One of the most significant trade developments of the day was the reported increase of 2 per cent in the mill operations of the United States Steel Corporation, which are now said to be around 71 per cent of capacity.

Cotton futures reacted about $1.50 a bale in the early trading on week-end realizing, but wheat, after opening lower, rallied on reports of frost in certain sections of Canada.

Rails, which have been rather sluggish all week, gathered strength when a brisk demand developed for some of the southwestern carriers, particularly the Missouri Pacific issues. Taplin interests were again reported to be buyers of Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Western Maryland issues, which advanced about 3 points each.

Pan-American issues and Houston again bore the brunt of the selling pressure in the oil group, which may have been influenced in part by the publication of an unfavorable semi-annual statement by the Pan-American Western Petroleum Company.

Greene Cananea was an outstanding strong spot among the specialties, soaring 7 points. Gains of 3 to nearly 4 points were recorded by General Railway Signal, Baldwin, General Motors, Woolworth and several others.

The closing was strong. Special buying operations were started in a number of shares in late dealings to combat the growing volume of realizing and expanding pressure against the oils. Lehigh Valley rose 5 points to 111 and Burns Brothers "A" 6 to par. Hocking Valley sold up to 320. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe went down sharply in consequence of the severity of foreign competition. Total sales approximated 1,900,000 shares.

SLIGHT UPWARD TREND IN COKE

By International News Service.

CONNELLSVILLE, Sept. 2.—That there is but little improvement in the condition of coke production, which is just keeping pace with the market and no more, was the concensus of opinion among operators here today. Merchant operators continue to show an upward trend, but the movement is so slow as to be almost negligible.

Merchant gain for the week ending August 31, was 600 tons. At furnace plants there was a decline of 300 tons, reducing the regional gain to 300 tons, with a total production of 69,180 tons against 68,180 tons for the previous week.

Prices were unchanged at from $3 to $3.25 for spot furnace, and $4 to $4.75 for foundry. It was pointed out that these prices have been unchanged for many weeks. Increase demand for heating coke was noted with prices ranging from $2.75 to $3.

Copper Sales Larger.

Copper has sold in better volume than for several weeks and prices have taken a turn for the better; other non-ferrous metals, however, have been quiet, with lower prices for lead and tin, Engineering and Mining Journal reports. Industrial conditions promise to be active in the fall, even if not on quite the scale of a year ago, and the current month should witness an improvement in the volume of metals sold over that for August, particularly for copper. The tone of the copper market is perceptibly better. Most of the large sellers have refused to quote beneath 13⅛ cents, delivered to usual Connecticut points, though business was taken last week in certain directions as low as 13.05 cents.

International Harvester continued the advance which has been in progress for several days on buying stimulated by the ending of "trust" litigation, which has been in progress for several years. The ruling, signed by Judges Sanborn, Stone and Lewis, held that the company had fulfilled its agreement made in 1918 for reorganization and restoration of competitive conditions. In 1926 Harvester's net income of $26,983,611, after preferred dividends, was equal to $19.55 a share on 884,758 common shares outstanding. Indications are that Harvester will earn in the neighborhood of $20 a share during the current year.

Money and capital to finance the expansion are plentiful. COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 2 to 11 points. December contracts selling up to 23.25c and March to 23.41c on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement, prompted by relatively steady early cables from Liverpool.

Reports of rains in Texas, where droughty conditions have been complained of, were accompanied by selling orders from the Southwest, and prices eased shortly after the opening under realizing. Some hedge selling also was reported on the setback, which carried December off to 22.90c and March to 23.08c by the end of the first hour, or about 20 to 25 points net lower.

Private cable advices said the Liverpool market had advanced early on covering and continental buying, but later reacted on the Texas rain reports.

A private crop report placing the condition at 58.1 and the indicated yields at 12,680,000 bales may have accounted for some of the buying at the opening, but the demand soon tapered off. The market was easier late in the forenoon on a favorable view of the rains in Texas and rumors of larger private crop figures. December sold off to 22.81c and March to 23.00c, with the market showing net declines of about 20 to 25 points around midday.

BOTH SIDES IN W. & L. E. FIGHT FILE BRIEFS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Arguments for and against the granting by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the applications of seven directors of the New York Central, Nickel Plate and Baltimore and Ohio for authority to serve in similar capacities on the Wheeling and Lake Erie was contained in briefs filed today with the commission. The three roads own 51 per cent of the Wheeling stock.

The Wabash and the Pittsburgh and West Virginia advanced their views in opposition to the proposal, while Walter L. Ross, president of the Nickel Plate, continued the defense of the plan which began yesterday.

The Wabash declared the directors were seeking representation on the Wheeling board for the "manifest if not admitted purpose of suppressing competition in trunk line territory by eliminating a fifth system based upon the Wabash, Wheeling and Lake Erie and Pittsburgh and West Virginia properties, and disrupting the established route or channel of trade formed by the Wheeling and its eastern and western connections."

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia asserted the three trunk lines were violating the anti-trust law in acquiring the Wheeling's stock, and that the applications to sanction the interlocking directorates were tantamount to asking the commission to put its stamp of approval on illegal acts.

Mr. Ross asserted the intervenors' arguments evince "an utter failure to comprehend the national policy for providing an adequate and efficient national transportation system," and were made with no other purpose than to obstruct the four-system plan.

The New York Central argued that competitive relationships existing between the Wheeling, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania and the Erie are such as to make it "manifestly absurd and preposterous to assume that the New York Central can conceive it to be to the financial interest of that system to undertake a policy of suppression of Wheeling competition."

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—With damaging frost reported both in Canada and Argentina, wheat prices took an upward swing today. Temperatures as low as 20 were said to have been experienced in parts of Alberta province, Canada. The forecast is for cool weather both sides of the Canadian boundary but no frost is in sight for this side of the line.

Wheat closed firm, ⅝@1⅛c higher; corn unchanged to ⅝c off; oats ⅛@⅜c up and provisions showing 7@20c advance.

At noon wheat was ⅝@1c net higher and corn ¼@⅜c down.

According to reports current here, ice formed last night at some points in Alberta province, Canada. Low temperatures in Canada taken in connection with previous forecasts of severe frost by September 3 aroused much apprehension, some advices saying 20 per cent of the Canadian crop needs 10 days to mature. Other authorities, however, said the crop is mostly ripe and the harvest general.

Aside from low temperatures in Canada, some other reports from there were bullish. Winnipeg messages received in Chicago stated that whereas 150,000,000 bushels had been marketed in Canada last year in September and October the volume coming in will be less this year because of late harvesting and threshing.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today. No sales were reported and prices were unchanged at 4.71c for Cuban, duty paid.

Raw sugar futures were easier under liquidation or realizing for over the three-day adjournment, probably prompted by the unsettled condition in the refined market. Trading, however, was not active. The trade in general was inclined to limit operations and await developments. Prices at midday were 3 to 4 points net lower.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.75@6.00c for fine granulated, with a better inquiry at the inside level.

COOK-COOS

by Ted Cook

(Copyright, 1927.)

President Coolidge should be congratulated upon the terseness of his written announcement.

"I do not choose to run for President in 1928."

But it is grammatically awkward. He should have written—

"I do not wish to choose to be a candidate in 1928."

Or, he might split an infinitive (just as Lincoln split rails) and say—

"I do not choose to for President run in 1928."

ROY'S BETTER SELF ASSERTS ITSELF

Takes Count Philosophically; Lesson For One and All; Review of "Maurine," Off the Presses in 1901.

Maurine Was Breathing Heavily.

Roy Montaine winced as Maurine politely told him to cool down. His rubber collar was steaming and his nostrils were dilated. But always the gentleman, cousin Roy—

Took Maurine's hand and helped her to arise,
Smiling upon her with his sad dark eyes,
Where passion's fires had, sudden,
ceased to burn.
" . . . . . through every nerve,
Her slightest touch went thrilling."

Roy finally spoke, saying—

"As we now, with measured steps retrace
The path we came, e'en so my heart I'll send
At your command, back to the olden place
And strive to love you only as a friend."

Well spoken, Roy Montaine! Hear! Hear! What a pity 'tis that more of our young men cannot take a leaf from Roy's book —there would be fewer divorces these days if the men would follow the example of Roy Montaine and be a friend rather than a husband.

Adam Scofflaw's Journal

Early up to help Mister Perriguey and Mister Parrish laye a grote of cast stone for my popinjaye to step upon when she hang out the washing, and my dame bleat to put her bare foote print in the cast stone whilst the cement is still soft (it being a prettie sentiment) but at nighttide the loon cry out, saying her shoon and stocking are cemented to her foote. And albeit I fetch the can opener and the cold chisel, I cannot free her foote, but instead thwack her on the ankle so the dove needs to go to bed with her shoon on, poor wretch.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

On "Tact."

All MARRIED WOMEN should have a
HOBBY besides their husbands.
This relieves the MAN, the situation and
The MONOTONY of marriage.
After a MAN has worked himself to DEATH
All day, in order to make a LIVING
For his DEAR WIFE, it seems a little TOO MUCH
To ask him to AMUSE her all the EVENING.
No WIFE can expect her husband to be CONTINUALLY Entertaining; for it is not in the NATURE
Of husbands to STRUT their STUFF for their Own wives. At HOME they want to be—THEMSELVES.
Therefore, a WOMAN of TACT might take out some Of her enthusiasm on GOLF, business, bridge,
Or any other DIVERSION, so that when the tired
Business MAN comes home
SHE can sympathize with him.

BUGS BAER Says

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

CHICAGO is going to enjoy one of Tex Rickard's leather jubilees.

Tex has already defeated New York and Philadelphia but Chicago insists on sticking out its municipal chin.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

Tex is the world's biggest lumber merchant.

He sells you two feet of pine board for $40.

One of Tex's best riddles is the popular ringside seat. In the old days the ringside seat was close enough to the ropes to enable the fortunate holder to get a shower bath every time the trainer rubbed a fighter.

Many a ringside seater enjoyed the pleasure of holding a champion in his lap. Firpo knocked Dempsey into a spectator's lap with the result that Jack and the fight fan became warm friends.

They sat there and talked it over. Eventually Jack climbed back into the ring and slapped Firpo into another man's lap. Introductions were made all around and Firpo went back home thinking that Americans were very cordial.

But this congenial atmosphere has evaporated from prize fighting. There are more ringside seats than fighters and there will be many disappointed fans.

In fact, there are 27,000 ringside perches and only two fighters. This looks like sour arithmetic. We cannot see how Tex can afford to sell 27,000 ringside seats when the ring is only 24 feet square.

There should be 27,000 fighters so that every fan can cuddle a champ. As Tex is charging 40 markers a stall for this fight there should be 764,000 fighters and only two spectators.

The spectators should perch in the ring and look at the 764,000 fighters slugging each other in the ringside seats.

No two men can fight $40 worth in a night. We saw all of Tex's big riots and they were very peaceful.

Not being able to afford more than $5 a seat we found that we had drawn ringside seat number 1,987,542.

It was right inside the park but outside the festival. The fighters were so far away that they looked like polo players in a flea circus.

It was the first time we had ever seen an atom refereeing a contest between two champion molecules.

But Tex is a great promoter. He must be when he can get $40 each from spectators who are paying for the privilege of seeing specks floating in front of their eyes.

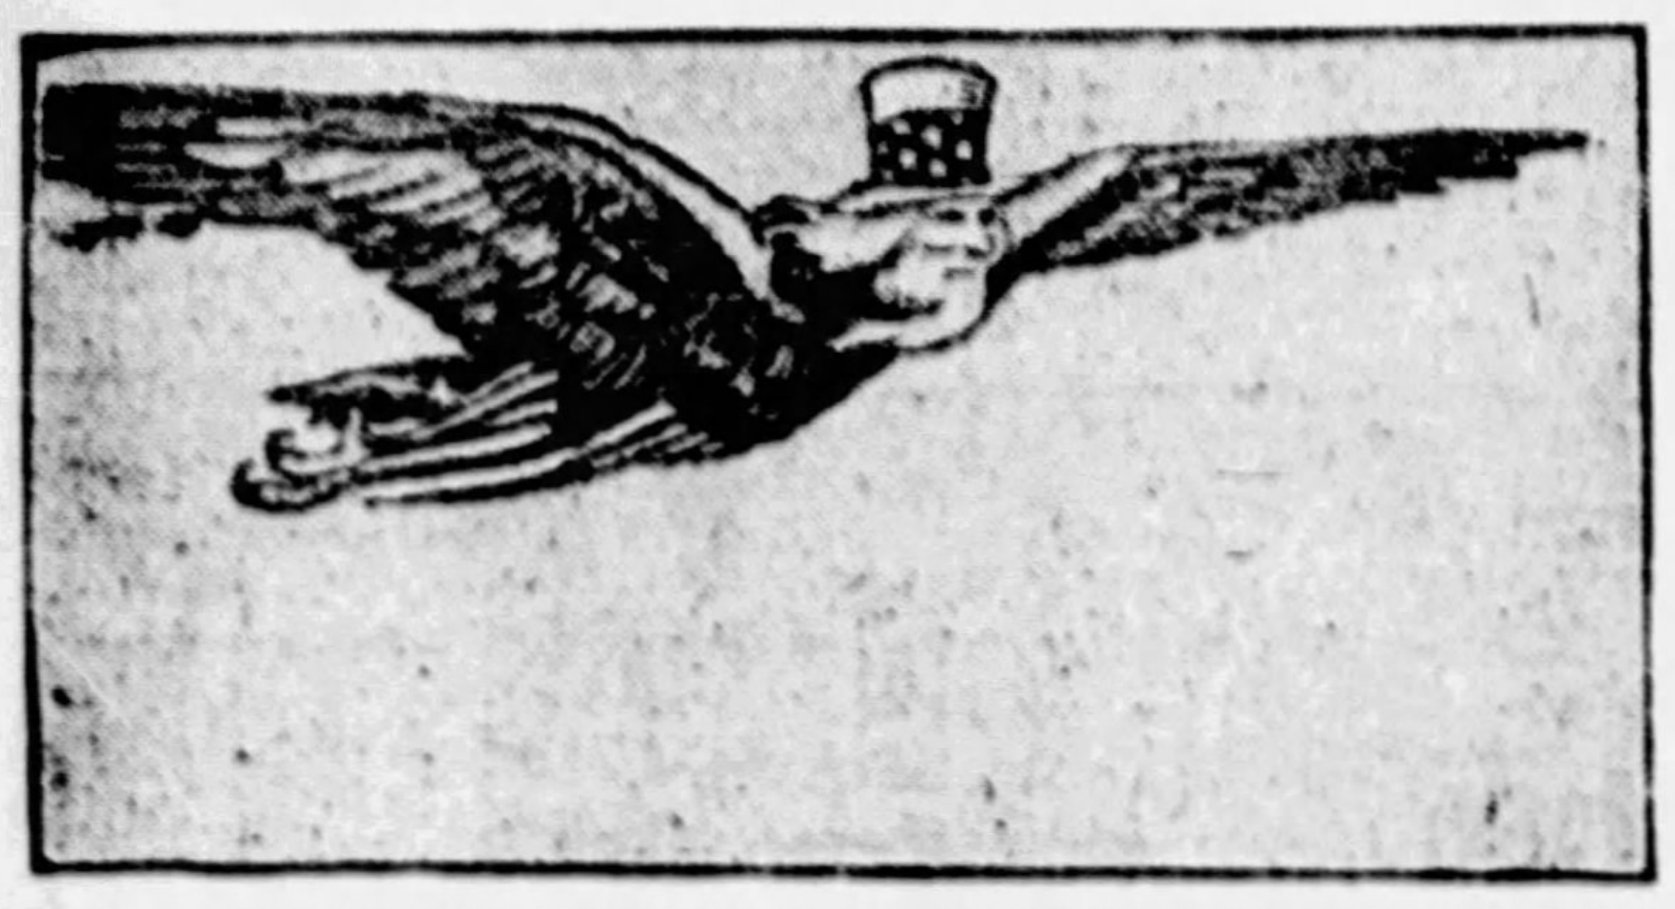
Europe Discovers We Are Not All "Dollar Grubbers'



EUROPE'S NEW PICTURE OF UNCLE SAM.

This representation of Uncle Sam with a stovepipe hat, striped trousers, flying through the air, published in De Amsterdammer, of Holand, shows that Europe is changing its mind about Uncle Sam.

The old theory was that America was a nation made up of dollar grubbers, ignoramuses and second-rate descendants of emigrants from Europe.

The American was supposed to grub for his dollars in dense ignorance, then go to Europe to acquire knowledge, and incidentally reveal ignorance in the spending of his dollars.

When young Lindbergh flew across the ocean, alone, followed by Chamberlin and Levine, then by Byrd and his companions, the Europeans opened their eyes.

How could it be possible that dollar-grubbers could be the first to fly over the ocean at one "hop," doing the thing that Europe had not done, and taking risks that actually indicated ambition?

Our good friends in Europe, some of whom are rather provincial and a trifle self-satisfied, forgot that the people of this country, "descendants of emigrants," descend from men and women that had the courage TO CROSS THE OCEAN in days when to cross the ocean meant something.

The man in Ireland, Italy, France, Germany, England, Scotland, Wales or any country with sufficient energy and ambition to pack up his family and come to America across the ocean, often in a small sailing ship, not knowing what he would find when he got [illegible] THAT MAN HAD COURAGE AND AMBITION.

[illegible]en Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd started across the ocean through the air they used courage inherited from the emigrants back of them.

Some of those emigrants may have been humble peasants; some, of course, were men of education, daring and PROTEST. But all had COURAGE.

That's why old Uncle Sam is the real flier of the world, although his government, for some particular reason, is extremely [illegible]d about using the flying machine that was INVENTED [illegible]ca.

Why Better Care for the Aged Is Coming

A state federation of labor has declared, in principle, for old-age pensions, common abroad, rare here.

A number of facts promise to force this topic to the fore. It is said, for instance, that only about one American in five reaches the age of 70 with enough saved to span the remaining years without assistance.

That is a disquieting statement, if true. Fortunately, private assistance is usually generous. Where it is lacking, the public has to pay, somehow. It is, therefore, wise for the public, from time to time, to consider how it can best shoulder this burden.

Again, progress in health protection is lengthening the span of life while at the same time industry is tending to deny employment to workers beyond middle age. Let these two opposite tendencies go on long enough and we shall obviously have a more difficult old-age problem than we have now.

The pension idea is only one way out; perhaps not the best. Secretary Davis has another. He would place the helpless superannuated in attractive colonies, husband and wife together, giving them all the kindness that a good private home could give, and letting them, so far as they are able, do useful work in part self-support.

His information, based on a considerable body of experience, is that this could be done with the money now spent on the present so-called "poor houses," some of which are miserable institutions.

It is the American habit to search for the better way until it is found.

Leave 'Em to the Public

Members of the Motion Picture Producers of America have placed the ban on all profanity and all sneers at the prohibition law, and neither of these diversions will appear on their films in future.

In their opinion, there has been too much "cussing" in film titles and that "cracks" about the prohibition law are neither funny nor in good taste.

In these matters the producers are absolutely right. If there is any cussing to do regarding the pictures the audience will do it, and does do it religiously. They pay for the privilege. As for sneering at the prohibition law, the public apparently needs no cinematic demonstration as regards methods.

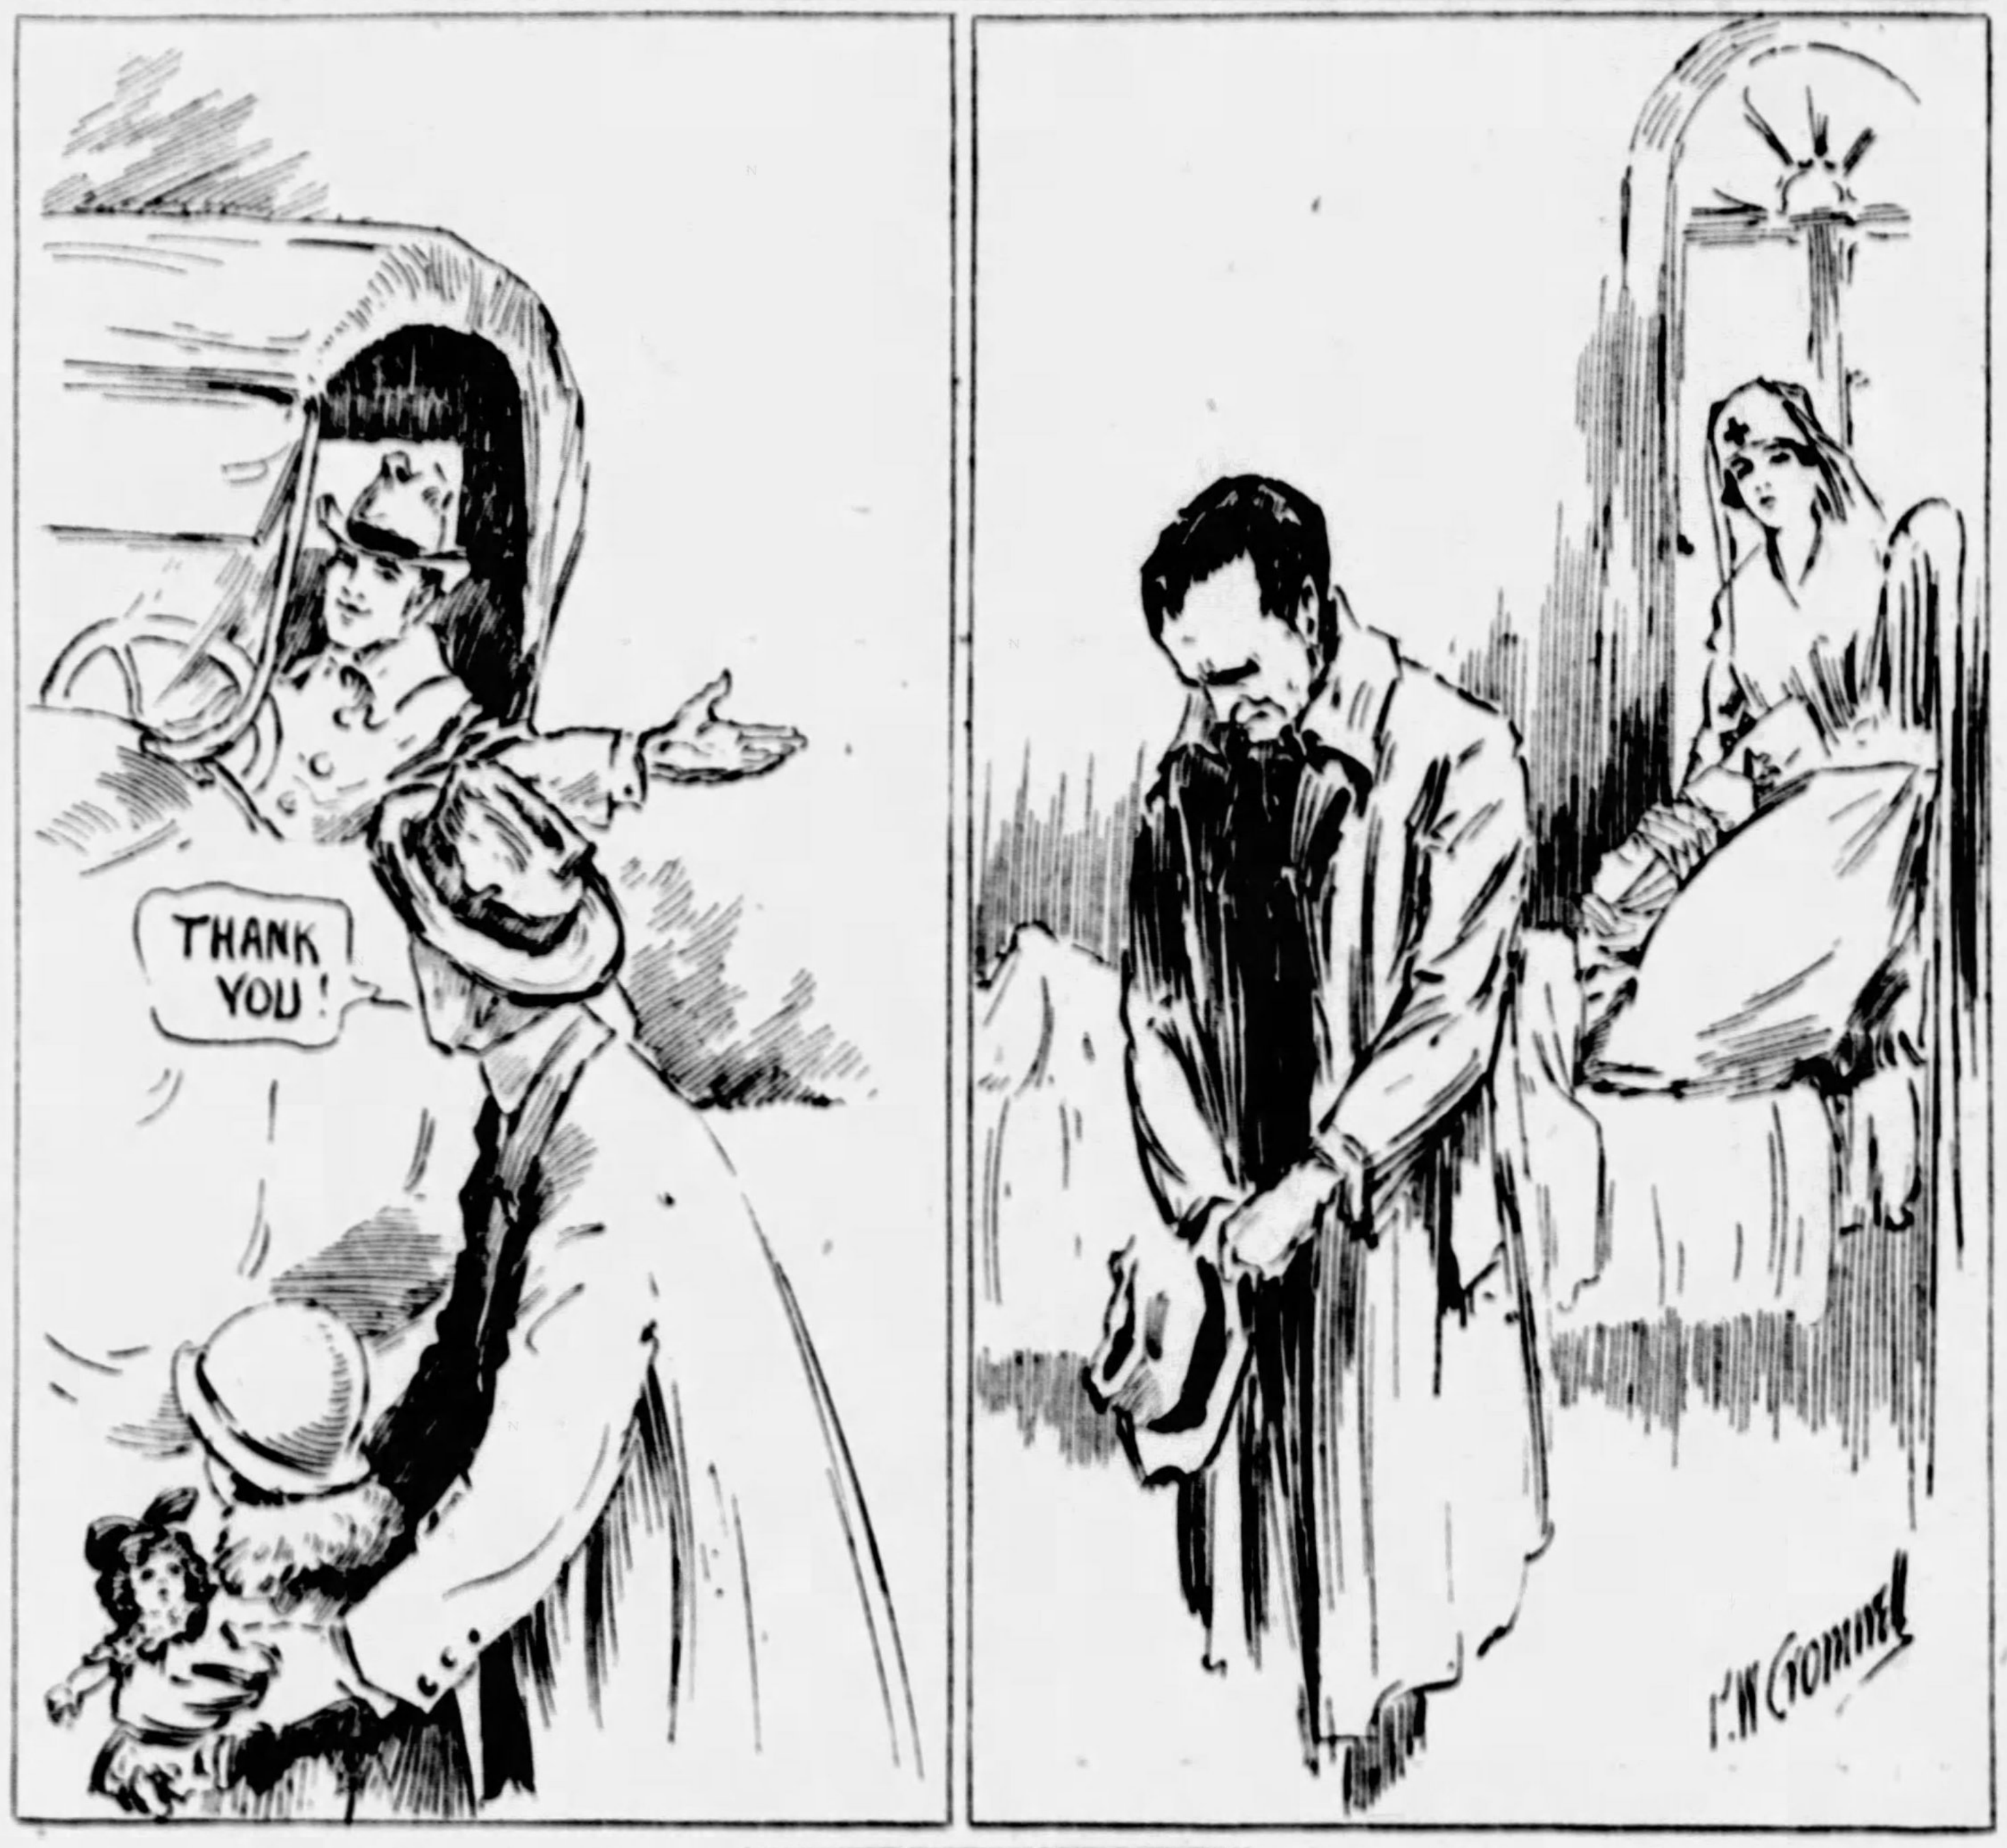
"SAFETY OR SORROW"



Garrett P Serviss Says:

The Oyster King

SOME day a farmer's boy from the Middle West, tired of the land and longing for the salt sea, will go Down East, seeking an occupation and a fortune on the Atlantic shore. He will eat the oyster and the clam savory with the pure brine of the ocean, and will prick up his ears when he hears of the "oyster farms"—for the words of childhood's days have ever a charm that abides.

And then people will tell him that, in spite of man's interested efforts to defend them from their enemies, the oysters are being killed off, and the business of oyster culture has fallen into an alarming decline. His thoughts will feed upon this, and there will grow up in his brain the project of a greater oyster farm than any the brackish borders of the sea have yet known. So, his destiny will call him on to his waiting fortune.

He will grow up to be the "oyster king." His salt water "farms" will enchain the coast from Massachusetts to the Gulf. Science will lend him her aid; researchers will earn big salaries from him; great throngs of workers will plant, cultivate, gather and distribute his oysters. The shell-rending starfish will be put to rout, the marine borer will feed on luscious oyster-flesh no more, the drumfish will seek other fields for the exercise of its powerful grinders. The oyster king's agents will avert the floods that destroy oysters by the million by drowning them in fresh water from the land, and will find ways to avoid the wholesale burying of them alive in the sands swept coastward by great storms.

This new "magnate" will have found better methods of cleaning the oyster grounds and surer ways of saving the oyster eggs, of which a single female oyster, says Mr. Prytherch of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, produces from ten to sixty millions in a summer. From the eggs are developed the microscopic larvae, which fasten themselves to old shells, rocks, or any hard, smooth surface that they can reach. A thousand of them may be found on a single square inch.

The coming great oyster farm will have a constant supply of uncontaminated water, for nowhere is contamination more dangerous. A single oyster—to quote Mr. Prytherch again—drinks about fifteen gallons of water per day, from which it extracts 99 per cent of the suspended material and food particles, which consist mainly of the microscopic plants called diatoms. Let us see what 15 gallons per day for each oyster means in the aggregate for a whole oyster farm:

"The District of Columbia," says Mr. Prytherch, "uses sixty-five million gallons of water daily, yet this amount would be consumed in the same period of time by the population of an oyster bed only one-tenth the size of the White House grounds.

The oyster feeds about 20 hours a day by opening its shell and creating a current of water through its gills, filtering out the food content.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

A wise fool is a worse fool than an ignorant fool, —Moliere.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY.

Bitter Thoughts

AT TIMES you are surprised to realize how different you appear from what you are.

Impulses come to you that you do not understand.

Sometimes they are good, and often quite the opposite.

Are you not ashamed of some of these thoughts that course through your brain?

Again, you are elevated by the fine mental suggestions you receive.

Which line of thought do you allow to predominate?

From experience you know that you are better pleased with yourself when your mind dwells on sensible and wholesome subjects.

When your inclinations are bitter and antagonistic, you know you have a right to feel ashamed.

Of which kind of thoughts are you trying to free yourself?

It is time you made a definite decision to control yourself.

Mean, revengeful thoughts, perhaps, are claiming too much of your attention, and they will eventually hurt you more than others.

"Idle Days"

THE bright days come, the bright days go, what joy as each one passes! Blue skies above, green fields below, sun, wings, trees, brooks and grasses. No honest soul can now lament for any vanished treasure, since here he finds brimmed-up content, deep, sparkling wells of pleasure. To dream, to drift the whole day through, forgetting all but gladness, to reap the joy of life anew is Summer's song-sweet madness! The bright days dawn, the bright days fade, and with each hour men capture some bliss from time's gay cavalcade, regain some ancient rapture. Not such reward as toil can bring, bright gold or plaudits ringing; but only hearts that soar and sing, nor ever tire of singing. These are the gifts of idle days, of dreaming, drifting hours when down time's hidden, quiet ways the joy of living flowers!

A Jaywalker?

"YOU say you were slapped on the back by a bathing girl?" asked the puzzled magistrate of the bandaged complainant.

"Yes," was the reply. "It was on this fellow's radiator cap."

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Thoughts while strolling: Two blocks tied up in a traffic snarl. What became of the horsefly? The one-armed fruit dealer on West Forty-seventh street. The striped vests of Schrafft's waiters. Those naughty revues with cathedral scenes. Walter Kingsley, the Boswell of vaudeville.

The place near the Palace where they give you all the coffee you can drink for 10 cents. A winter scene painted on a bass drum. Ted Healy, the actor, who looks like Earl Carroll. More Schnauzer dogs. Why does everybody's food look better than yours in a restaurant?

Otis Skinner and his monocle. Bird store sign: "Turtles for pets." Those ancient walnut stained chophouses thorny with antlers. Walls with drinking mottoes in old English script. And plaster saints upon mantles. Max Hoffman, the orchestra leader.

Jagged holes with networks of rising red girders. Husbands who sit on front steps while wives sit at street windows. A motorcycle club. Where do palmists get their fancy names? Two girls puffing cigarets while their shoes are being shined.

George Roos, the handsome radio operator on the Ile de France. Sing Low, a laundryman. A fishing club. Val O'Farrell, the private detective. A woman tosses a vase of flowers from an auto. More bicycles than you used to see. Hair dressing parlor announces: "Elderly bobs."

Those men with big heads who wear peanut hats. A string of bobtailed polo ponies. John V. A. Weaver, the poet. Upstairs dancing schools megaphoning music to sidewalk crowds. Silly women clinging to vanishing youth. Whatever became of Mary MacLane?

The theatrical producer who features need of a shave. Furniture stores with completely furnished rooms as window displays. Turkish bathouse inscription: "Aqua est optima." Still water isn't everything. The rumble of thunder.

* * *

A shower brings a touch of camaraderie to turbulent Broadway. Pedestrians caught under the canopies and in doorways forget their hurry and become friendly. Indeed two marriages are reported to have resulted from such meetings. Then the sun pops out—and the town rushes madly on again. What a street!

* * *

New York is going after motor street crossing hogs. They are the autoists who block the crossing while waiting for traffic lights to change. They make pedestrians walk around them, thus at times endangering lives. Their manner is also insolent in most cases. Hundreds have been arrested in the past few weeks. Several were beaten up by pedestrians.

* * *

No place offers the rollicking brand of low but good natured comedy to be found in the various mid-town Automats. They are the rendezvous of many smart crackers who will do anything for a laugh. They occupy tables together and do their stuff in a show-off manner. Many are small time vaudeville folk and their bantering is usually at the expense of themselves, instead of the innocent bystanders, as it so often happens in country towns.

* * *

Broadway clowns are not always of the theater. Some of the most amusing belong to that strange brotherhood who seem to do nothing at all—yet they are slickly dressed, well barbered and pay their own way. It is a type not particularly peculiar to Broadway, but somehow along that sophisticated strip he appears to fare better. One of the Broadway virtues is not to inquire into one's means of earning a livelihood.

* * *

Many years ago inspired by a yokel curiosity I asked one of those dubious New Yorkers what his business was. He replied he did many things but one thing he did not do was to ask other people their business. As I recall I said: "Oh"—and let it go at that. That seemed a tip off to me—even if I am not Edison's nephew—that it was none of my business. And, after all, it wasn't. The native New Yorker is rarely curious.

Making a Library

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Libraries are essential to the continual advancement of the race. In them are preserved the records of past achivements and by looking them over a man can see what has been done before him and how far along he has progressed.

The beaver builds the same kind of dam now that he built in the Garden of Eden and the bee makes the same kind of honeycomb. Animal life goes round and round like the wheel of a stationary engine.

Human advancement, however, is more spiral. It sometimes seems to be going round and round, but at every turn of the wheel it is getting a little bit farther.

We are all indebted to those who have gone before. Our electric lights are the result of the discoveries of a man who is now dead and our gas comes from a like source.

The man who invented matches is gone and the heroes who founded this Republic have passed away.

Looking back over their achievements, we are enabled to make our advancement.

A significant step in this direction has been taken by Harvard University, where a committee has been appointed by the faculty, who every year will make a selection of the films produced during the last 12 months which they deem worthy of preserving.

A library of this character will be of immeasurable value.

Think what it would mean if we could have the actual George Washington in action reproduced before our eyes, or the doings of Napoleon in person.

President Wilson has already begun to fade our memories and of Wellington and Gladstone we have but dim conception.

To conserve therefore films representing public men and public events which are worthy of conservation will be greatly appreciated by the next generation. It will help them not only to read about Mr. Coolidge and Theodore Roosevelt, but if possible to see their moving pictures and perhaps to hear their voices.

All this brings to mind that the moving picture is not a mere form of entertainment.

To be sure, that is now its principal use, but it is also a method of instruction unparalleled.

Devices will be made in time by which we can teach such things as history and geography, to say nothing of other sciences, by the means of these films.

Discord

TWO statements made before the National Association of Piano Tuners, recently in session here, will challenge attention.

One placed at 5,000,000 the number of American pianos out of tune. It is believed that this is an underestimate, though it would be wise and merciful to have yours tuned.

The other claimed that 40 per cent of the $300,000,000 spent annually for musical education is wasted.

Only 40 per cent?

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

NOW the phonograph entered the general exhibition stage of its development. Offices were established at 203 Broadway, New York, whence demonstrators were sent out to all parts of the country. After going through a course of instruction the demonstrators were given machines and started on their way rejoicing.

EVEN in those early days of the phonograph, still in its tinfoil form, famous prima donnas were not averse to trusting their precious voices to its erudities. For the above illustration of a recording scene we are indebted to an issue of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, which appeared some time during 1878.

THE phonograph came to the Edison laboratory and the first baby to the Edison home about the same time. The fond father determined to make a record of his first-born's lusty crying, but, try as he would, the child would only laugh and he gave up the attempt until later years, when he succeeded.

WHILE Edison was strongly inclined to work on the perfecting of the phonograph, the coming of the electric light compelled him to devote all his energies for a time to this new field awaiting conquest. From the year 1878 to 1887 the phonograph was laid "on the shelf."
